Baton Rouge man critically hurt on US-90

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Joel West, 20, of Baton Rouge, La. remains in critical condition at Garden Park Community Hospital in Gulfport, suffering injuries sustained in a 6:50 p.m. Sunday traffic accident.

West was struck by a car while attempting to cross the westbound lanes of US-90 just east of the Henderson Point curve. West was taken by Mobile Medic to Hancock Medical Center and then transported to Garden Park due to the nature of his injuries.

Hancock Medical Center Administrator Philip Wolf said patients with head trauma injuries are usually transported to another hospital.

Garden Park spokesman said Wednesday West is in the intensive care unit where he is listed in critical condition.

State Trooper David Kenny reported witnesses said West, who was carrying a surf board, had safely crossed the eastbound lanes, stopped in the median, looked for oncoming traffic and then stepped into the path of an oncoming vehicle.

The vehicle which struck West was driven by Calvin Reese of Fresno, Ohio.

Kenny said no charges were filed in the incident.

County to continue railroad fight without amending funding level

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County has agreed to continue to pay part of the legal costs incurred in fighting a railroad's proposal to increase the speed of its trains, but has not agreed to an amendment of an interlocal agreement among Gulf Coast municipalities.

Two cities in Jackson County, Pascagoula and Gautier, have dropped out of the interlocal agreement, thereby increasing the local shares of the legal costs for the remaining participants.

The agreement had been approved in June after Chesapeake Seaboard X Transportation, Inc., also known as CSX, filed suit in Southern District Federal Court in May against Gulf Coast municipalities, asking the court to allow CSX to increase train speed limits to 55 to 65 miles per hour, depending on the type of cars each train is hauling.

CSX representatives had visited those municipalities which have speed limits to ask them individually to repeal their local ordinances.

Waveland, the only one in Hancock County with a railroad speed limit, refused to repeal its 35 m.p.h. restriction and subsequently became a defendant in the suit.

Hancock County is not a defendant but the supervisors agreed to pay part of the legal costs, which are being pooled in order to save each entity the expense of paying individual attorneys.

Biloxi's legal representative, Page, Mannino and Peresich, has been selected to handle the defense under the guidance of a steering committee made up of attorneys for each entity.

The board had originally agreed to pay up to $4,000 in legal costs, although its percentage was originally set at 4.16 percent. The agreement covers only the first $100,000 in defense costs and must be approved again when legal fees exceed that amount.

At the request of Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr., the board went on record in June against the increase in speeds, which local authorities contend will increase the danger of accidents, including derailments with possible hazardous chemical spills.

The board also provided Longo with a resolution for inclusion in an information package about the speed limit opposition that he sent to Congressman Trent Lott with a re-

Public comment being sought

Another stage reached in four-laning 603

BY DENA BISNETTE

The State Highway Department is seeking public comment on the results of an environmental impact study on possible effects of four-laning Highway 603.

The proposed project would widen the road, also referred to as Mississippi Highway 43, from two lanes to five lanes from US-90 one-half mile north and then to four lanes from that point to Interstate-10.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors had asked Southern District Highway Commissioner Bob Joiner to look into the possibility of four-laning 603 at least to I-10 and perhaps later to the point where the road divides into Highway 43 going to Poycayne and 603 going north.

After several fatalities on 603, the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce became involved in the matter, with its board of directors meeting with Joiner in June of this year to try to have the project expedited.

At that point, Joiner told the chamber board that surveys were in progress along the highway and preliminary approval had been obtained from the U.S. Coast Guard regarding proposed bridge additions at Bayou LaCroix and that the highway department was awaiting U.S. Army Corps of Engineers advice on Wetlands permits.

Some funding arrangements had also already been made.

According to a legal notice included in the environmental assessment and signed by State Highway Department Environmental Division Engineer W.K. Magee, copies of the study's findings are being made available for public inspection locally at Waveland City Hall and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors office and the chancery clerk's office in the Hancock County Courthouse.

Anyone who wishes to request a public hearing on the matter should write to Chief Engineer, Mississippi State Highway Department, P.O. Box 1850, Jackson, Miss. 39215-1840, according to Magee.

The environmental assessment states that about seven acres of wetlands at four sites will have to be filled during construction but the design stage of the project has not yet advanced far enough for the highway department to begin acquiring the needed permits.

The document states that the improvements are "needed to handle future and existing traffic needs of the area" and would cause no disruption to neighborhoods and communities.

No community support facilities, such as schools, recreational areas or other public facilities, would be disturbed, although the project is expected to include displacement of 21 families and five businesses during right-of-way acquisition.

The additional lanes are not expected to significantly affect air quality and is expected to create only a minor increase in noise pollution at three occupied facilities.

In addition, except for providing a better evacuation route, the type of construction involved is expected to have little impact on flood conditions.

Other areas not expected to be affected include land use, cultural resources, water quality, threatened or endangered species, streams, wildlife and agricultural lands.

Wastewater, pollution control meeting expected to provide easement decision

BY DENA BISNETTE

How much longer residents of the Hancock County Wastewater District No. 1 will have to grant easements for the first publicly owned sewerage system to be constructed in the unincorporated part of the county may be determined Thursday at a meeting of State Bureau of Pollution Control and Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District officials.

According to attorney Lucien Gex, who serves as legal counsel to Waveland Regional Wastewater Board but is handling the matter of the easements because the regional district will actually serve as operators of the county system, time is running out for those who wish to grant easements.

The deadline has been moved several times and the "latest and last deadline is Sept. 21," Gex stated.

The process of obtaining easements was originally supposed to be completed by Aug. 1, but regulations involving the 85 percent grant funding the regional district hopes to obtain for collection system construction dictated that titles searches be completed on each of the more than 600 parcels of land and that appraisals be provided for residents who wanted them.

Since then, generic appraisals based on the average worth of the property in a given neighborhood have been allowed.

The easements are needed for the installation of grinder pumps, three-foot wet wells, pipelines and related equipment at each of the homes to be served.

Homes which fall under the grant funding will not be charged an estimated $3,000 for installation of the equipment if the homeowners provide easements.

The homeowners will have to pay a monthly user charge and will have to pay for any in-house plumbing or electrical work needed to accommodate the wastewater equipment.

Last week, the regional wastewater district board agreed to change the concept of the project, contingent upon whether or not the funding agencies, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and Farmer's Home Administration, approve the change, District Administrator Ethel Schott said.

The original plans called for location of the equipment within ten feet of the house to be served, both to save the homeowner money on the electrical connections and for aesthetic reasons.

"Because grant funding may be lost if a clear site certificate can not be signed by Sept. 21, and because a clear site certificate can not be signed if all easements and titles are not 100 percent complete by that time, it has been decided to install all grinder units and service poles on public rights-of-way on the street except along Highway 603 between the northeast side of Lagan Street and First Street," Schott said.

She added that persons who have already granted easements may be given an option regarding whether they want the equipment installed on the rights-of-way they have given or on the public street rights-of-way.

The problem with the 603 area is that the State Highway Department will not permit such installations on highway rights-of-way in anticipation of a proposed four-laning project, Gex said.

"On 603, we can provide service, but if the residents don't give us the easement we may have to drop them from the program," the attorney explained.

Gex said the districts had originally expected to have to file imminent domain procedures against those residents from whom easements could not be obtained.

No refrigeration

Safer food supply possible with irradiation

JACKSON—Food that requires no refrigeration, has a long shelf life and is safe to eat may be just around the corner.

The processing technique that gives foods these advantages is called irradiation.

"Food irradiation is the first basically new food processing technique since canning was developed back in 1910," said Walter Urban, a retired food technologist, who was the keynote speaker at the recent Magnolia Section meeting of the Institute of Food Technology in Jackson.

Urban spent a lifetime working with irradiated foods in private industry and in public research institutions. He is a strong believer in the process.

"Irradiation is an outstanding process from the standpoint of food safety, value and its broad application to many foods," he said.

Urban said irradiation is accomplished with a source of energy from electromagnetic radiation. Early work on the process started back in 1920. Urban used the technique to kill parasites in pork in 1936 while working with Swift and Co.

"Early problems with irradiated foods were the cost of the technique and the bad taste produced in foods," he said. "The X-ray source used to irradiate foods in early work was inefficient, with a conversion rate of less than 1 percent."

With the entrance of the nuclear age using radioactive elements, the energy source for irradiating foods was solved. The process destroyed the spoilage microorganisms in foods, but it left a bad taste in some products.

"In the early 1950's, the Army became interested in the process," he said. They did lots of work on irradiated food, but the bad taste problem remained.

"A technique was finally developed in England that led to solving the taste problem" Urban said.

"The process finally developed was simple: treat the food while frozen and the taste of the product is not changed!"

Urban said this breakthrough set the stage for a vast improvement in food safety through the irradiation process.

"But about this same time, we had a terrible incident in the drug field that caused the Food and Drug Administration to clamp down on all new processes," he said. "Tests were required for irradiated foods to prove their safety."

Urban said techniques to prove the safety of irradiated foods were extremely expensive, and only the Army was financially able to make the tests.

Christ Episcopal Church participating in pilot program

Christ Episcopal Church is one of 23 Episcopal churches throughout Mississippi to take part in a pilot program of Guest/Friendship Sundays ("Friendsundays") to take place on Sept. 13, 20 and 27.

Other Gulf Coast churches that are participating in the program are St. Patrick's of Long Beach, St. Peter's By The Sea and St. Mark's of Gulfport and Trinity Church of Pass

Christian.

The purpose of these Guest/Friendship Sundays is to expose the Episcopal faith in a positive way, and to encourage and invite both the church and unchurched to visit and share more about the Episcopal faith and worship and fellowship, according to Mrs. Ira Hatchett who is in charge of these three "Friendsundays."

MPC to cut ribbon on new local office

Mississippi Power Company will hold a ribbon-cutting ceremony Friday at 10 a.m. to officially open its Pass Christian local office at 255 East Second St.

The new 2,400 square foot facility replaces the old local office at 118 Davis Avenue for all customer service functions in the Pass Christian area. The office will feature larger customer service and parking areas than at the previous building, a drive-up window for bill payments and a meeting room available for public use.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony and tour the new building. Refreshments will be served immediately following the ribbon-cutting.

"The new office symbolizes Mississippi Power Company's commitment to our operation in Pass Christian," MPC's Bay St. Louis/Pass Christian Area Supervisor Randy Castello said. "And we hope it will provide a more comfortable and convenient place for our customers to do business with us."

Customers may make bill payments, applications for electric service or disconnection of service, billing inquiries or any other business arrangements with Mississippi Power Company at the new office.

The office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

USDA announces 1988 wheat provisions

USDA announced a required 27.5 percent acreage reduction and other provisions of the 1988 wheat program.

Other provisions of the 1988 wheat program include:

—A loan rate of $2.17 a bushel, a 20 percent reduction from the basic loan rate of $2.71. The downward adjustment was determined necessary to maintain U.S. wheat competitiveness in domestic and international markets. This is the statutory minimum and five percent below the 1987 loan rate of $2.28.

—The established target price is $4.29 per bushel, the statutory minimum, and down two percent from the 1987 target price.

—A paid land diversion program will not be implemented.

—No marketing loan or related program provisions will be implemented.

—Producers will be required to maintain in acreage conservation reserve an area equal to 37.33 percent of program payment acreage.

The Secretary of Agriculture reserves the right to initiate later cost reduction options as outlined in Section 109 of the Food Security Act of 1985. These options may include reopening or changing a contract entered into by producers if they voluntarily agree to change.

USDA Provisions

Limited cross compliance will be ineffect for the 1988 crops of wheat, feed grains (corn, sorghum, barley, oats), upland cotton and rice.

To be eligible under the cross compliance provision for price support loans, purchases or payments for these crops, the acreage planted for harvest on a farm may not exceed the crop acreage bases for these commodities.

Other common program provisions applicable to the 1988 crops of wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice include:

—Offsetting compliance will not apply, meaning that eligibility for program payment and a loan for a program commodity on a farm will not be affected by actions taken with respect to that commodity on another farm.

—Production of nonprogram crops will not be permitted under the 50/92 provision. To be eligible to receive payments on 92 percent of the permitted acreage, producers must plant at least 50 percent of the permitted acreage to the program crop and devote the remaining permitted acreage to a conserving use.

—Production of alternate crops on the designated Acreage Conservation Reserve will not be permitted. As required by law, grazing on ACR land will be permitted at the request of state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committees, except during any 5-consecutive-month period designated by these committees. Haying of ACR land will not be permitted except under emergency conditions.

—The authority for farmers to adjust any crop acreage base with a corresponding downward adjustment in other CAB's on the farm will be considered when producers need to change cropping practices to carry out conservation compliance requirements on highly erodible land.

—Generic commodity certificates will continue to be a part of the 1988 farm program, if needed. The extent of their use will be determined as payments are made.

POPE PORTRAYAL

Charles Durning portrays Pope John XXIII in a one-man show, "I Would Be Called John," at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 16, on Mississippi ETV.

In his brief reign as pontiff, from 1958 to 1963, Pope John XXIII became a beloved figure throughout the world among Catholics and non-Catholics alike. Yet there was more to this son of a peasant farmer than his gregarious warmth.

Elected pope at age 77, Angelo Roncalli was determined to throw open the doors of the Catholic church to both people and ideas.

After he was elected, he had to adjust to Vatican bureaucracy, but the pope was not about to allow himself to become a "prisoner of the Vatican."

Much to his assistant's dismay, he walked around the city, greeting tourists, visitors, meeting with old friends and becoming the first pope in nearly 200 years to attend a play: T.S. Elliot's "Murder in the Cathedral."

"I think I should support culture," he said. "Besides, I expect to have a good time."

Said Durning, "I'm a Catholic. I respect my religion, so for me to play the leader of the Catholic Church was quite an honor."

Consumer Update

By Janet K. Lukens
Coast Consumer
Management Center

Along with everything else, childcare costs are on the rise and many parents may be looking for less expensive alternatives. One alternative might be to establish a babysitting co-op in which a number of families decide to share babysitting among themselves without the exchange of money.

In a babysitting cooperative, members agree to share responsibilities of record keeping and providing and using services. Although babysitting co-ops are usually intended for an occasional "night out" and not for regular day care, you may wish to establish a co-op of families with day care needs.

The advantages of a babysitting co-op are that children make new friends; develop social skills; become close with many families; no money is spent for babysitting; families are helped with occasional day, evening or emergency overnight care; provides free time when parents need it and provides parents with opportunities to see their children interact with others.

To organize a co-op, meet with a few families with children of similar ages who are willing to share babysitting. Cooperatives may be as small as five or six or as large as 50 or 60 families. It is a good idea to set a maximum number of members at the initial planning meeting. Regular meetings should take place to discuss progress, problems and membership.

The cooperative may decide to elect a chairperson and a secretary and "pay" them with extra "credits" or "points" or have each member take turns as secretary on a rotating basis. The chairperson can arrange the meetings and deal with problems that arise between meetings. The secretary keeps records of all points earned and spent for each member. The secretary also totals and balances the books and provides each member with a summary which includes the points the member has.

When a member needs a babysitter, the secretary is called and a sitter is requested for a certain time and date. The secretary calls members and locates a sitter as close to the member's home as possible, attempting to find a sitter who owes points.

The secretary calls the member and sets up the sitting arrangement. After the care has been provided, both member and sitter agree on the number of points and these are reported to the secretary who records them. Points are earned (plus points) by being a sitter and points are spent (minus points) by using a sitter.

The point scale should be decided upon by the members when getting started. A sample point scale might be: 2 points per child per hour; 1 point per child per meal; 1 point per child per hour for overnight care with specified hours.

Keep the needs of the children in mind in all babysitting situations. Parents should talk to the children about the sitter and the situation and be reassuring about when they will return.

ETV Brief

RIGHTS LAW

Public television celebrates the 10th anniversary of the implementation of a federal law supporting the rights of handicapped children at 2 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 13, on Mississippi ETV.

In "Beginning with Bong," six children share a day at school and show the difference a law has made in their lives, friendships, self-image and hopes for tomorrow. The law mandated that whenever possible children with physical differences should be educated in classrooms with children not having physical limitations.

These six kids, beginning with a child named Bong, explain about doing things differently and explain about being the same. They talk about themselves—how they would like to be treated, their desire to be independent, the importance of friendship and their need to be accepted like everyone else.

People are often justifiably concerned about the effect this stand conversion will have on wildlife, especially the gray squirrel. We at the Forestry Commission like squirrels and other animals as well as anyone, and we are not about to make management recommendations that make them an endangered species.

We recommend converting upland sites to pine. By this I mean the upper slopes and tops of ridges and hills. Stream bottoms, and lower slopes will grow good-quality hardwood and can be very expensive to convert to pine. Hardwoods are generally the proper species for this type of site and are highly desirable for the gray squirrel as well as other wildlife.

By following a timber management plan landowners may increase their timber income and at the same time make the forest more attractive to a wider variety of wildlife. Some animals that do not make extensive use of open hardwood forests are attracted to the bushy conditions that exist in young pine plantations. Examples of these animals are cottontail rabbits, bobwhite quail, many songbirds, and to some extent, whitetailed deer.

Wildlife biologists tell us that many animals are attracted to the areas where the different types of stands meet. This area is called the "edge effect." The system of forest management described here will produce much of this edge effect.

One of the many things landowners may do to improve wildlife habitat is to establish supplemental feeding areas or "food plots."

Quotables by CUEVAS

Area high school teams overall did not do too well last Friday opening the 1987 season losing three of four games.

Head coach Irvin Favre's Hawks were the only shining light as they continued their winning ways in defeating Pearl River, La. 34-0.

This week Hancock will travel to Pearl River Central, the Hawks' arch rival for many years.

Hancock should be prepared for a good battle Friday if they intend on staying undefeated.

Hancock seems to be high flying this year and could stumble if they are not careful against PRC.

The Tigers of Bay High were surprised by Stone County last week coming up on the short end of a 19-0 score.

In recent years the games between Bay High and Stone County have been very good and usually close in scores.

This week Bay High will travel across the Bay to play Pass Christian, who also lost last Friday.

Tiger mentor Cleveland Williams and Pirate head coach Alton Wright will both be trying to come up in the win column.

This should be a very close game in scoring and a few breaks may mean a victory either way.

St. Stanislaus Rockachaws will open home season play against arch rival St. John's Eagles of Gulfport. The Rocks stumbled last week against Pope John Paul of Slidell and will be looking for their first victory of the season and first for head mentor Ken Lyons.

The continuing to improve Eagles exploded last week against the Pirates and it will take a lot of Rock defense to contain them.

Stanislaus will have to play flawless football in addition to getting many breaks to clip the Eagles.

The Tigers, Hawks, Rockachaws and Pirates all need to have good fan support in the stadiums on Friday.

If you haven't attended a high school game in recent years, by going you may find out you have been missing a lot of excitement.

The players need your support.
We hope to see you at the games Friday.

I had to do my football part of my column this week twice because of the 'Ice Cream Man'.

I had just finished writing my column and out went the lights as I was getting ready to review it before entering into the computer.

Well it seems the 'Ice Cream Man' was driving his truck on South Second Street and somehow caused a utility line to break.

As folks arrived to work they were wondering why the lights were out and I would tell them the 'Ice Cream Man' did it, and no one would believe me.

That was not the first and won't be the last time to lose a story because of a power failure.

We had a lot of visitors over the long Labor Day Weekend, and a lot of our folks traveled visiting relatives and friends.

There appeared to be many persons at the several functions I attended and even trying their luck at fishing.

I managed to do some fishing with my brother Raymond over the weekend and caught a few speckled trout.

Fresh fish are always good to eat.

There were a lot of boats out in the Mississippi Sound and it seemed several folks were out just for a boat ride as they did not even give fish a chance to bite before they were moving.

Sometimes you have to have patience to catch fish.

Smoking and cancer

Most forms of cancer seem to happen for no apparent reason. Smoking is one factor which can be controlled, advises the National Foundation for Cancer Research.

The Surgeon General and other scientists are constantly reminding us that smoking dramatically increases the chance of getting lung cancer. This is no longer scientific speculation, it is proven fact. Yet millions of Americans, at home and abroad, continue to smoke. Why?

Advertising and many movies portray smoking as sophisticated and sexy. Some people even smoke in the belief it will keep them thin. However, there is nothing attractive about having lung cancer. It is a sad and painful disease which is usually fatal.

According to the NCFR, tobacco contains carcinogens, which transform normal cells into cancerous ones. The coughing and wheezing you might shake off as "smoker's hack" could actually be the start of a tumor which is blocking an airway.

Lung cancer is hardly the only risk you face as a smoker. You also greatly increase your chance of contracting other forms of cancer—of the throat, mouth, esophagus, kidney, pancreas and bladder. In fact, NCFR researchers believe that smoking presently accounts for thirty percent of all cancer deaths. And smoking contributes to many other health problems as well, including heart attacks.

Quitting the nicotine habit is never easy but it is possible. Don't give cancer an unfair advantage.

The national Foundation for Cancer Research is a private, non-profit organization based in Bethesda, Md. With the help of donors nationwide, it has allocated more than $50 million to basic cancer research over the last decade.

Varnell, Prendergast honored

100 Club members make highways safer

Eighteen law enforcement officers from across Mississippi have been honored for their efforts in ridding Mississippi highways, streets and roads of drunk drivers, by being named to the 100 Club for 1986.

Each year, the Highway Safety Division, Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, present plaques to officers who issue at least 100 or at least 200 driving under the influence (DUI) citations. No officers qualified for the 200 Club in 1986, but Mark B. Shepherd of the McComb Police Department led the 100 Club with 148 citations, followed by Waveland's James Varnell with 121 and Michael Prendergast with 110.

The number of officers honored is down from 1985 when there were 24 members of the 100 and 200 clubs and 1984 when there were 42.

"We have been told by many officers that, due to the increased awareness of the drunk driving problem, there do not seem to be quite so many drunk drivers on the road," said Billy Terrell, Highway Safety Division director.

"Other factors are that manpower has been a tremendous problem for all types of law enforcement agencies due to budget constraints. With fewer officers on the road, of course, arrests tend to go down. Also, several of our projects which had dedicated DUI task forces have reached the end of their federal funding period.

Other officers named to the 100 Club were Roger D. Chambers, Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, 118; Andrew Havard, Meridian Police Department, 117; Andrew Emerson, Meridian Police Department, 114; Rickie D. Marlar, Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, 114; Charles D. Beavers, Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, 110; Michael Broadus, Biloxi Police Department, 110; Michael R. Wilkie, Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, 108; Stephen Guerry, Pascagoula Police Department, 107; Clay Daniels, Harrison County Sheriff's Office, 106; John Butcher, Biloxi Police Department, 105; John Vanek, Biloxi Police Department, 103; Crieg A. Oster, Brookhaven Police Department, 102; Thomas Wilkie, Biloxi Police Department, 102; Buddy Nabors, Okolona Police Department, 101; and Anthony A. Thompson, Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, 100.

Thomas Wilkie was a member of the 200 Club and Beavers, Chambers and Broadus were 100 Club members for 1984 and 1985. Varnell was named to the 200 Club in 1984 and the 100 Club in 1985.

Other 1986 100 Club members who have been honored previously are Thompson, who was named to the 100 Club in 1983; Marler, 100 Club in 1984; and Daniels, 100 Club for 1985.

The 100 Club for 1986 includes five officers from the Highway Safety Patrol, four from the Biloxi Police Department, two each from the Waveland Police Department and the Meridian Police Department, and one each from the McComb Police Department, Pascagoula Police Department, Harrison County Sheriff's Office, Brookhaven Police Department and Okolona Police Department.

Members of the 100 Club were honored at a recent luncheon at Jackson's Sheraton Regency.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

(Bill Minor is on vacation. During his absence columns of his from several years back will fill his usual spot. This is one written Aug. 28, 1955)

JACKSON—For the first time in memory of Capitol observers, Mississippi has elected a governor who said he planned to set up an administration leadership in the state Legislature to interpret and carry out his programs.

Gov.-nominee J. P. Coleman, eschewing the traditional attitude of keeping a "hands off" policy on the internal organization of the Legislature, told the people that he believed a more clearcut administration organization in the Legislature was long overdue.

Many members of the upcoming Legislature have said privately that they do not doubt Coleman plans to do just that. How far he plans to extend his administration organization is something which is not yet known.

Because the candidates for governor and members of the Legislature do not run on tickets in Mississippi, there is no ready-made way of knowing who is pro-administration and who is not.

The number of state legislators who worked openly for Coleman during the primaries this summer indicates that he will have a good nucleus to give his legislative plans some impetus.

The detachment of the Legislature from the governor's office in Mississippi has apparently built up since the late 1920s when open warfare existed between it and then Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo.

This legislative independence has become almost complete in recent years and the phrase "it's up to the Legislature" has become virtually a motto of the governor's office when confronted with major programs.

In view of this prevailing attitude, several of the top contenders for the governor's office this summer stressed in public appearances that their programs were to be left to the will of the Legislature entirely.

One of the major questions in Coleman's legislative plans is what role, if any, he will take in the race for the powerful House speaker's post.

The top contenders for the job at the moment are Rep. Walter Sillers, of Rosedale, veteran of 40 years in the Legislature and speaker for the last 12, and Rep. William Winter, highly regarded young member from Grenada County, who made stump speeches for Coleman in both primaries.

Sources have said that Sillers received assurance from Coleman in the gubernatorial runoff that he was not "running" Winter for this information, Sillers reportedly agreed to take a public "hands off" position in the gubernatorial race.

Coleman is also on record as favoring several other major changes in the Legislature. He has pledged his support to opening to the public and the press the heretofore secret legislative committee meetings and requiring committee voters to be recorded. Such a proposal has always been ridiculed by the Legislature.

His other proposal was for a constitutional amendment to limit special sessions to 30 calendar days in order to put an end to the long-drawn-out sessions which have become common in Mississippi. Earlier this year, the Legislature stayed in special session 16 weeks.

The Coleman proposals represent a break with the past. Such proposals in the Mississippi Legislature usually meet with stiff opposition. How far they will get will be viewed with interest.

REPORT TO MISSISSIPPIANS

TOURISM MEANS ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT FOR STATE

During the hot summer months, people throughout the nation take part in a summer-time tradition. These hundreds of thousands of vacationers who travel to numerous vacation spots are all part of a major national industry -- tourism.

In Mississippi, tourism is the third largest industry in the state. Only manufacturing and agriculture are bigger. Preliminary figures for 1986 estimate that more than $1 billion was spent on travel-related activities in Mississippi.

There's no doubt that tourism is big business in Mississippi. It's an industry that has been a great boost to our economy. Last year, more than 33,800 jobs are provided through the tourism industry with a payroll of $272 million. State tax revenue from the tourism industry for 1986 was more than $78 million while local communities benefited from more than $9 million in local tax revenue.

The potential, however, for this industry is much greater than past figures indicate. What is now a billion dollar industry could become a multi-billion dollar industry, creating additional jobs and generating millions in tax revenue.

Mississippi's resources are great. No where else can you find the diverse geographical attractions ranging from the beaches on the gulf coast to the hills of North Mississippi to the flat Delta lands.

Mississippi offers both a touch of yesterday through its small towns and today through the big city attractions of our capital city, Jackson. Our heritage of literary and entertainment figures is equalled by no other state. People interested in history and architecture will find a lot to fill their interests in Mississippi, and outdoor sports enthusiasts will find ample opportunities for a variety of outdoor activities.

Our greatest resource, however, is our people. Surely our nickname as the hospitality state is well deserved as I believe Mississippians are the friendliest of all.

I am encouraged by the work done by our state officials in developing the tourism industry in our state. The recent appointment of a special task force to make recommendations on improving these efforts is a positive step. At the same time, I'm concerned about reports of bankruptcy declarations by several major hotels in our state.

We can and should give more attention and emphasis to our efforts to advertise Mississippi's attractions to potential visitors. We can all become involved in the effort to promote tourism in Mississippi by spreading the word. Each of us can play a part in "selling" Mississippi to others - in helping develop this much-needed industry for our state.

A former Secretary of the Navy, after a visit to Mississippi, called our state an "overlooked paradise." It's our job to spread the word to others so that our "paradise" won't be overlooked in the future.

Hancock Humane Society can benefit through Gaines dog food promotion

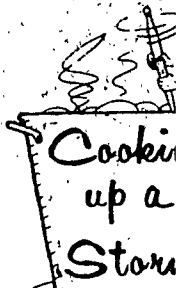

To The Editors
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

On August 30, 1987, The Echo published a story about Governor Allain's proclamation declaring September, 1987 as "Share Your Love for Dogs Month."

It says, "Through this one-of-a-kind fund-raising effort, animal shelters collect starved markers from participating Gaines dog food products—Cycle, Gravy Train, Burgers and Top Choice/Puppy Choice/Prime Variety—and then redeem them for cash from the pet food companies.

The Hancock County Humane Society would very much appreciate receiving these markers from every dog owner who uses Gaines dog food at P.O. Box 471, Waveland.

Since the wing is my favorite part of the chicken, I am always cooking up chicken wings in one fashion or another; especially since my younger grandsons have grown so fond of the "mini-drumsticks"—the first, meaty joint of the wings.

(The next part is good, also, and I save the wing tip for chicken stock or soup).

The mini-drumsticks, as we call them, are delicious Southern Fried Chicken style, all crisp and crunchy. But, around this house, we also like these chicken bits sauteed in butter with lemon slices and fresh parsley, or stewed in a rich tomato sauce, or cooked with mushrooms and rice, or barbecued—and so on and so on, and they are marvelously tasty as appetizers.

Sometimes I serve these mini-drumsticks in a chafing dish, in whatever sauce I have stirred up, along with tiny hot dogs, sausages and meatballs, and they're ever so quickly devoured! And, when I cook up a batch for myself and Peanuts-The-Cat for a simple, speedy lunch or supper, they're gone in no time, with me striving for my share.

A favorite is:

MINI-DRUMS IN BEER SAUCE

2 or 3 dozen chicken wings, the "mini-drum" meaty part
1/2 cup soy sauce
1 cup pineapple juice
1/4 cup brown sugar
1 clove garlic, minced
1 Tbsp. minced onion
1 level tsp. ground ginger, optional
Butter or margarine for browning chicken wings

1 cup tired beer
First, cut off the tip and end joint of the wings, reserving the "drumsticks." Combine the soy sauce, pineapple juice and brown sugar in a bowl, then toss in the garlic and onion and ginger, if you're using the latter. (Some like ginger, some don't; if you use it, just don't overdo it.)

Add the cup of tired beer, as we call it—tired beer is nothing more than beer which you have opened and let sit around awhile before you start to cook—in other words, flat beer. At any rate, after you add the beer, stir the whole business together, then pour this sweet-sour marinade over the mini-drumsticks, using a rather deep bowl, so that all the pieces are well bathed in the marinade.

Let this sit for three or four hours in the refrigerator—or for just an hour or so at room temperature. Then, drain off the marinade and set it aside—but don't throw it away! Brown the chicken pieces in butter or margarine in a heavy skillet, then add half a cup, more or less, of the reserved marinade to the pan, cover and simmer for 20 minutes or so or until tender.

Peek into the pan from time to time, adding more of the marinade if needed, lest the chicken dry out. Serve hot, with the remainder of the marinade spooned over, or with the sauce in a separate bowl for "dunking."

Gourds: Ancient Crop For Ornaments, Eating

By Milo Burnham
Horticulture Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Gourds are one of the oldest crops on record. They have been used as ornaments, dippers, water jugs, household containers, bird houses and musical instruments to name just a few.

Mississippi has at least one craftsman who fashions one type of gourd into a banjo. Gourds existed in Peru, probably as wild plants, at least as far back as 11,000 B.C. to 13,000 B.C., and they were one of the first domesticated plants. Gourds have been grown and used for centuries in many parts of Africa, Asia and South America, as well as in New Zealand, the Pacific Islands, and the southern part of the United States.

Most of the commonly grown gourds belong to two genera: Cucurbita and Lagenaria. A third genus, Luffa, contains the dishrag gourds.

Cucurbita gourds are highly colored and fancifully shaped. The surface may be either smooth or warty, colored or plain, striped or ridged. The ornamental forms occur mainly in the species C. pepo. The ornamental gourds have been named for their shapes: apple, bell, egg, orange, spoon, crown of thorns and pear. Colors include shades of yellow, orange, green and off-white.

The Lagenaria, commonly called bottle or dipper gourds, produce white flowers, which distinguishes them from the yellow-flowered species of Cucurbita. The fruit is usually smooth but may be ridged or knobby. The mature fruit of the Lagenaria are not damaged by frost. The immature fruits may be damaged, however, so it is best to harvest the Lagenaria along with the more tender Cucurbita. The thin shell becomes extremely hard and durable and will last for many years.

Ornamental gourds are ready for harvesting when they are hard to the touch and the stems turn brown. The "fingernail" test is frequently mentioned as a maturity test. This is not recommended, however, because a break or dent in the shell of an unripe gourd may destroy its future value and could open the gourd to infection by rot. Whether or not they are fully mature, ornamental gourds must be harvested before the first freeze.

Use sharp shears or a knife to cut gourds from the vines and leave a piece of the stem attached. Gourds pulled from vines are frequently injured at the site of stem attachment and this opens them to infection by rot causing organisms.

Wash the harvested gourds in warm, soapy water and rinse them in clean water after adding a household disinfectant. This removes any soil and soil-borne organisms clinging to the shell. The gourds may be wiped with a soft cloth soaked in a non-bleaching household disinfectant, a solution of vinegar and water, or two tablespoons of borax mixed with a quart of water. Dry each gourd with a soft cloth to avoid bruising or scratching the tender skin.

To remove surface moisture, spread the gourds out on several layers of newspaper in a warm, dry place. Surface drying takes about one week. During this time, the outer skin hardens and the surface color sets. Gourds that are dried in the sun have bleached out colors. Some fruits that are not mature will begin to shrivel or develop soft spots. These gourds should be discarded to prevent the developing rots from spreading to the healthy gourds.

Most ornamental gourds lose their color within six months. They can be waxed with paste wax, then buffed with a soft cloth to produce a soft shiny surface with highlights.

Shellac gives gourds a hard, glossy finish. The gourds can be hung by their stems and sprayed with shellac or dipped into shellac and then allowed to dry.

The Lagenaria gourds can be left in the garden until they are yellow and brown, then picked and allowed to dry outdoors or in a well ventilated dry place. These hard shelled gourds may take three to six months to dry and cure. The large kettle gourds may take up to a year to cure. Lagenaria gourds are dry when the shell hardens and they turn from pale green or gold to beige or brown. They also become light in weight and their seeds rattle inside.

Luffa gourds are grown for eating and for the fibrous interior of the ripe gourd. Also known as dishrag gourd, vegetable sponge and Chinese Running Okra, the young tender fruits (not more than four inches long) are eaten like cucumbers or cooked as a vegetable. The fibrous interior of the mature gourds is reached by peeling the gourd before it dries or by soaking the dried gourd in water until the skin disintegrates.

ASK OCHSNER

Q. I recently found out from my doctor that the slight pain I've been feeling in my abdomen is due to adhesions from previous Caesarean sections. Will these adhesions harm me in any way aside from the discomfort? L.O., Boute, La.

A. The term "adhesion" is used to describe scar tissue within the abdomen and chest cavities which have developed due to prior surgery, infection or inflammatory conditions.

According to Dr. William M. P. McKinnon, a general surgeon at Ochsner Clinic, New Orleans, adhesion is most commonly used to describe post-operative scarring and refers to the problems that can be caused by this process.

Scarring occurs whenever surgery has been performed and is the body's natural way of healing wounds inside the body. Scarring takes on two forms. The most common occurs when the involved organs adhere together because of scarring, instead of gliding over each other as they did prior to the scarring. This type of adhesion rarely causes symptoms, but makes repeat surgery, for any reason, much more difficult than in the abdomen or chest that has been untouched, Dr. McKinnon says.

The second type of adhesion occurs when scarring forms strands of fibrous tissue between involved organs. These strands or "bands" can stretch across the intestines, causing partial or complete obstruction of the intestines. Symptoms from this type may range from vague digestive problems to complete bowel obstruction, which requires immediate surgery.

Generally, Dr. McKinnon says, patients who are thought to have adhesions and who have complaints that are mild to moderate in nature are not offered surgical therapy for this problem. The reason for this is that surgery performed to divide adhesions may actually cause additional scarring and worsen the condition.

If your discomfort persists, Dr. McKinnon advises you to consult your physician to determine what, if any, treatment is necessary for you. Presently, there is no known non-surgical treatment for the removal of scarring in the abdomen or chest.

City and school officials working together to keep millage rate increase low

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Bay St. Louis millage rates to fund city and utility department operations is expected to remain the same as last year.

However a slight increase will probably be necessary to provide required funding for the Bay St. Louis-Waveland Municipal School District.

The city council agreed Tuesday at its regular meeting to schedule a joint-meeting with members of the school board to be conducted before the Sept. 15 deadline for setting millage rates.

There have been several informal discussions with school officials regarding the amount of millage to be set for school funds.

The school district's budget request includes a state-permitted seven percent increase and funding for an $86,000 shortfall of tax revenues from the previous year.

A legal question on what amount the city is required to set millage to fund is being researched by city and school attorneys.

Council Vice-President James C. Thrifley III said the council is taking a real close look at all budgets which are funded by tax dollars.

Property owners and the business community have repeatedly expressed their dissatisfaction over the rising costs of millage, he said.

"I feel we owe it to the citizens and property owners to investigate any and all areas that we can to save tax dollars," he added.

"The city has shown good faith in doing all that we can to hold the line, including decreasing city department budgets," he said.

School District Superintendent Roger Oge' says he understands the city council's concern about the impact of a millage rate increase following so soon after recent utility rate increases.

"The council members want to make certain the board's approved budget is absolutely necessary for function of the schools," Oge said.

He also said School Board Member Charles Benvenutti, who has spent numerous hours studying the budget and is also a certified public accountant, recently represented the school board at a council meeting to discuss "particulars of the budget and the possibility of reducing the system's budget."

Benvenutti presented to the council the budget and an overview which shows the budget is not bloated but strictly adheres to the very basic necessities, Oge said.

"The discussion between the city and school officials has accomplished much including a realization of a need to respect each other's area of governance, a need to look at a broader tax base to include possible sales tax revenues rather than slowly choking off the citizens and a need for city and county school systems to collaborate and consolidate efforts wherever possible," Oge said.

The millage rate will be set at a 5 p.m. recess meeting of the council on Sept. 15.

Everybody's Science

Future Lawns Stay Green Year-round. Save Mowing Time

Hate mowing and watering the lawn? Hang in there.

Grass is coming that will need less watering and only a third as much mowing as conventional lawns, according to Dr. Jack Murray.

And Murray should know. As a turf specialist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Research Service, Murray tends more than 3,000 "lawns" each year.

"These are the experimental precursors of what America's lawns will be," said Murray about his checkerboard of 3- to 6-foot-square test plots at the Beltsville, Md., Agricultural Research Center.

"Americans spend countless hours and over $24 billion a year on their lawns," he said.

A new zoysia grass that will be sold as seed rather than as expensive zoysia plugs that homeowners now buy and plant is in the final stages of testing right now. But more important to some lawnkeepers, "this zoysia only needs to be mowed one third as often," he said. "Some zoysias like this grow sideways, spreading out to cover the ground, and tolerate drought."

Murray is also working on ways to keep lawns green year-round.

Today's zoysia varieties are mostly suited for southern states; zoysia lawns in the north turn brown over winter.

An experimental mix of zoysia to keep grass green all summer and fescue to keep it green all winter is undergoing final tests, he said.

On other Beltsville plots, the researcher is testing hundreds of tall fescues, fine fescue, perennial ryegrasses, Bermudagrasses and Kentucky bluegrasses.

Murray evaluates new types of lawn grasses for disease resistance, vigor, smooth and even growth, and cold or heat tolerance, as well as for their rooting power or blade width that give the lawn a carpeted appearance.

Seed companies use his evaluations to name and market new varieties of turfgrasses for homeowners and landscapers.

One of Murray's specialties is turf grass for sports fields. "Athletic directors will find that the newer sport turf varieties stay locked into the earth and can't be uprooted as easily by a football or baseball player," he said. "We have stronger, more disease-resistant turfs that keep fields smoother and safer and are less costly to maintain."

He said that knee and ankle injuries from uneven turf no longer have to be an accepted part of the game in high school and college sports.

Be cautious

For many years sulfites have been widely used by the food industry because of their usefulness in preventing browning and spoilage in fruits and vegetables. Sulfites also are used in seafood, baked goods and other items.

However, as there are more and more recorded cases of serious reactions—typically in asthmatics who unknowingly ingested sulfite at salad bars, government has moved to restrict its use.

In 1986 the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) banned the use of sulfites in raw fruits and vegetables, and set up a requirement that these substances be listed on the label when present at 10-parts-per-million or more in other products. FDA now requires sulfite labeling on prescription drugs, which started June 3, 1987.

The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has ordered that alcoholic beverages be sulfite-labeled by January 1988.

And United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) told meat and poultry processors that by July 3, 1987, their products must be labeled if they contain confirmable sulfite levels. Following FDA's lead, USDA also defines "confirmable" as 10-parts-per-million or higher.

"Sulfites are prohibited in fresh meat and poultry because they mask spoilage," said Margaret Galvin, director of FSIS' Standards and Labeling Division.

Five million women wear Jaclyn Smith Fashions

NORTH BERGEN, N.J.—What are women wearing these days? Skirts of any length—with the newest being the mini, washed denim looks, slightly oversized shirts and sweaters, knit dressing and the Jaclyn Smith Signature Collection!

According to K mart sales data it has been estimated that more than 5 million women wear the Jaclyn Smith line.

"The Jaclyn Smith collections have been extremely successful for us. The first line debuted in 1,400 K marts in August 1985. Since then more than 5 million women have purchased either one item or an entire outfit from the Jaclyn Smith line," said Debra J. Grafton, vice president and general merchandise manager of ladies and girls' wear for K mart Apparel Corp.

According to Grafton, there was a mutual admiration between Jaclyn and K mart right from the start.

"She's beautiful, very classy and dresses conservatively but in a fine fashion manner. Jaclyn wanted the K mart customer, who is also her fan, to know that she too can dress well at an affordable price," explained Grafton.

The 1987 fall collection, introduced July 22, 1987, is now in over 2,100 K marts across the country.

The collection, designed exclusively for K mart, consists of related separates in rich earthtones and soft textured patterns all created to go together. This line offers classic career dressing and relaxed casual looks. Traditional cable knit sweaters, solid tweed and patterned vests and corduroy pants in soft shapes are great for the autumn months.

Dressier looks include softly draped elegant blouses and expertly detailed pants and skirts. The fall signature collection is priced from $16.97 to $23.97 in sizes 6-16.

"All of my collections have been classic and very wearable—nothing way out or eccentric," said Jaclyn Smith.

"After two years of working closely together, I really feel part of the K mart family. Each collection we introduce gets better and better and I'm really proud of that," added Smith.

K mart Apparel has fashion buying offices in Michigan, New Jersey and California that supply over 2,100 K mart stores nationwide with the latest in family apparel fashions all year round.

This year, K mart stores celebrate 25 years of service to millions of Americans who have helped make it "America's Favorite Store."

By Dr. Dennis Tosh

Can the mortgage be prepaid?
Question: I have read my mortgage and am unsure as to whether or not I can prepay it. Can a mortgage be prepaid? G.R., Hattiesburg.

Answer: An important mortgage provision pertains to prepayments. A prepayment is a rendering of the principal amounts before they are due—either in part or in full.

In absence of explicit permission granted within a mortgage instrument, borrowers may not prepay principal balances unless a lender agrees to it. However, in some states laws require lenders to accept prepayments without penalty.

One reason this prepayment provision is important is that it could reduce a buyer's ability to finance a property and thereby lower its value. If mortgage rates have been at 12 percent when a property was originally financed but now are at 8 percent, a prospective buyer would prefer to get new financing rather than assume the 12 percent mortgage.

But if the lender refused to accept a payoff, the buyers would have to take over the 12 percent mortgage rather than pay the market interest rate of 8 percent. They would try to make up for this additional cost by offering a lower price for the property.

Sometimes mortgage contracts permit prepayment, but they impose a prepayment penalty on the borrower. Often this penalty is stated in terms of so many months interest.

For example, three-month and six-month interest periods are common. Knowledgeable borrowers check to see what limitations on prepayment a mortgage imposes. They realize that, in absence of a penalty-free prepayment privilege, their ability to sell or refinance a property can be hindered.

Beware, though, on second mortgages. Many second mortgage lenders will tell you they assess no prepayment penalty, but in fact they do.

For if you pay the loan off early, the lender may calculate the outstanding balance due under the "Rule of 78s."

This calculation technique loads much of a mortgage's interest payments into its early years, so an early payoff increases the loan's effective interest rate.

How did the custom of cheering and cheer leaders start in football?...When the first intercollegiate game was played in 1869 between Princeton and Rutgers, Princeton players got the idea of trying to upset Rutgers players by yelling every time Rutgers put the ball in play...But there was one thing wrong with this plan...Although the yelling did upset Rutgers, at the same time, it bothered the Princeton players because they had to use too much effort in yelling and it distracted them from their own play...So, for the second game against Rutgers, a Princeton man got the great idea of having some of the students along the sideline do the yelling instead of the players...A few students were chosen and taught what to yell and when to yell...And that's how the tradition was born.

MIKE ANTHONY worked for you in 1983-84 to make Hancock County a better place to live

JANUARY 8, 1983
Mike Anthony—representing Jourdan River Estates, the Garden Island River Association, and Dr. Edwin C. Cake, Jr., an oyster biologist of the Gulf of Mexico Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs—opposed any type of sewage discharge into any local waterways. "If we allow discharge into the Jourdan River or its tributaries, our water quality will never improve, it will only continue to degrade itself," Anthony stated.

WASTEWATER ALTERNATIVES—Reading a prepared statement at a Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District Board of Directors meeting Wednesday night at the Waveland City Hall.

regarding the permit board hearing: Michael Anthony, representing Jourdan River Estates, suggested the irrigation method as an acceptable long-range alternative for the Jourdan River. He noted the City of Ocean Springs is planning to utilize the irrigation method to dispose its sewage plant effluent in the Mississippi Sound Hill Crane National Wildlife Refuge 10 miles away and construct the system with 85 percent matching federal funds. The cities of Houston, Chicago and Tallahassee are utilizing the irrigation method, Anthony added.

THORST BACK

In response to about plans to wastewater River, the "wastewater" group agreed on an alternative for public discharge into the Jourdan River, the adjacent waterways, the shell fish beds and the po oceanographer of Gulf Coast Research Laboratory, who had been a consultant for the system adopted in Ocean Springs, Anthony said.

"Dr. Cake suggests that discharge into the Jourdan River inadequately or improperly treated waste could, serious damage to the recreational and tributes of the Jourdan River, the Bay of St. Louis, the adjacent waterways, the shell fish beds and the po ment system were not absolutely fail-safe. Any system operated by humans and machinery simply cannot be," he said.

"Although the Jourdan River group felt that a spray irrigation system, in which treated wastewater is used to fertilize forests, "makes the most sense of all," Anthony noted that his group lacked the resources to evaluate the technical and cost factors of changing the district plans to utilize this method. Instead, he asked that the district and its engineers include a spray irrigation system with other alternatives for public presentation.

Many of you may remember me from 1983 and 1984 when I fought very hard for you to get 85% Federal Funding for land irrigation to handle waste water for all of Hancock County. I went through the state and on to Washington, D. C., where I was finally told that Hancock County was not progressive enough to give the Federal money its bang for the buck.

I never want that to be said about Hancock County or us again. Fortunately, the four communities I represented did get the 85% Federal funding under land innovation and we stopped the planned waste discharge into the Jourdan River.

I HAVE WORKED HARD FOR YOU IN THE PAST, AND WOULD LIKE TO CONTINUE TO DO SO IN THE FUTURE AS YOUR SUPERVISOR IN DISTRICT 5.

Supervisors ask for enforcement of Kiln-Waveland weight limit

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is considering closing the Kiln-Waveland Cut-off Road as a truck route.

Beat Two Supervisor Ronald Cuevas requested Tuesday that the board consider the move, stating that he feels large tractor-trailer rigs are damaging the road surface. The road runs between US-90 at Trapani's Knock-Knock Bar and Highway 603 near Todd's Quick Stop.

Sam Perniclaro, Beat Four supervisor, said he thinks the best way to handle the problem is to ask the State Highway Department for enforcement, which involves setting up a portable truck scale on the road.

According to County Engineer Larry Seal, the weight limit on secondary roads such as Kiln-Waveland Cut-off is set by statute at 56,270 pounds, unless changed by the board of supervisors.

"Most of the trucks on that road won't make that," Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner said. "I think some of them would go as much as 10,000."

The board has decided to try the statutory weight limit to see if it is sufficient before attempting to set a new limit.

At Cuevas' request, the board agreed to post signs designating the load limit as well as to notify the State Highway Department.

In another road-related matter, Beat Five Supervisor James Travirca asked Seal to look into a problem on Kiln-Delisle Road.

Travirca has informed the board in the past that the road shoulders need to be built up to the level of the road.

He explained that there is a drop of several inches in some places, which poses a danger to a motorist whose vehicle goes off the edge of the pavement.

Travirca said several accidents on Kiln-Delisle Road had been reported to him over the holiday weekend.

In other business, the supervisors: —Named Jack Little to succeed Ethel Breaux on the Hancock County Human Resources Council; —Approved bonds on commissioners for Hancock County Wastewater District No. 1 as well as appointed Donald Simoneaux to replace Michael Reynolds, who has resigned from the commission;

—Agreed to take bids on a computer printer for the circuit clerk's office;

—Agreed to advertise for bids for firefighting equipment for the Kiln Water and Fire District;

—Agreed to look into a water well overflow problem at the Hancock General Hospital Building and to arrange for installation of switches that will correct the problem;

—Added County Agent Lee Taylor and Sea Coast Echo Publisher Ellis Cuevas to represent environmental concerns and print media, respectively, to a Civil Defense committee on hazardous chemicals at the request of Civil Defense Director Robert Boudin.

—Agreed to have the Pearlington marina site at the end of Monroe Street surveyed to determine exact property boundaries for the parking lot;

—Approved a temporary easement across county property for a seismic test cable; and —Agreed to place $17,000 in federal revenue sharing funds into the county road and bridge account.

The board's next meeting is Monday at 9 a.m. in the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

"Square One TV," the popular series promoting an enthusiasm in mathematics in everyday life, returns to Mississippi ETV at 5 p.m., weekdays, beginning Sept. 14. The magazine-format series for 8- to 12-year-olds is based on entertainment and encourages the use and application of problem-solving processes and tactics in everyday situations.

Also, parents will want to note that newer "Captain Kangaroo" programs are now airing on Mississippi ETV at 4:30 p.m., weekdays. This new collection of 65 programs is drawn from the 1982-84 seasons of the Captain's show on CBS, plus new segments especially produced for this season on PBS.

"Because we worked long and hard to bring back 'Captain Kangaroo,' it was very gratifying to reach new audiences on public television," says Bob Keeshan, who portrays the Captain. "I'm especially excited about producing new segments for the second season. We will aim to be 100 percent education and 100 percent entertaining."

At some point in each of our lives, we will probably need the advice of a legal professional.

According to the American Bar Association, you should choose a lawyer as you would a doctor, dentist, accountant or anyone who provides services. Be sure to compare shops.

Check the credentials of different attorneys. Discuss fees with them candidly and talk with them about the wisdom of retaining legal counsel. Recovering a $100 bad debt isn't worth $500 in legal fees and court costs.

To locate an attorney who can serve your needs, use personal referrals, our Mississippi Bar Association Lawyer Referral Service (1-800-682-6423, in Jackson 948-5488) or the Martindale-Hubbell Law Directory at your local public library.

Other sources of legal assistance are as follows: Legal Services (in Biloxi 374-4160, in Pascagoula 769-7817). It is available for assistance to low income or poverty level citizens.

Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office (436-6000). This department is available for legal assistance in the area of consumer complaints against a business. The consumer files a complaint form for problems incurred in the course of business or a purchase through the company. The Attorney General's office can then investigate and may be able to help in resolving the dispute or recovering losses of the consumer.

Small Claims Court. These courts offer citizens the chance to resolve minor disputes without the need for lawyers. Most small claims courts limit their cases to those involving claims up to $500. In most small claims courts, anyone with a grievance can bring suit for a filing cost of a few dollars.

Hancock trooper to represent Highway Patrol in boxing event

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Kiln resident Houston J. Dorr II is in training for the Hattiesburg Police Benefit Boxing and Karate Contests to begin at 7 p.m. Sept. 19 at the Hawkins Junior High School in Hattiesburg.

Dorr is a Mississippi State Trooper assigned for the past five years to Hancock County.

A native of Pass Christian, he is a former boxing coach for the Long Beach Boxing Club.

Dorr's experience in boxing began while he was in the Marines with a grudge match.

Dorr says he had a disagreement with a fellow marine and to settle the difference of opinion a boxing match was fought.

The match ended when Dorr knocked out his opponent, who was a Colorado Heavyweight champion.

Following this, an officer asked Dorr if he would like to train to box for the Marine Corps.

While in the Marines Dorr was assigned to the USS Oklahoma City which was stationed near Japan. During this time Dorr won the Far East Championship in 1977 and 1978.

After the Marines Dorr returned to the Mississippi Gulf Coast where he began coaching. Dorr was also in training to turn professional at this time and applied to for a job with the Mississippi Highway Patrol.

"But all my boxing experience and training was six years ago and I have had to work really hard to try and get in shape for this fight," Dorr said.

The Sept. 19 fight date is a couple of weeks postponement from the original date of Sept. 4.

Dorr took the entire month of August to implement a rigorous training program to be in top condition for the fight.

A typical training day began at 7 a.m. with a two to four mile run (with weights). Following a five-minute break Dorr would then jump rope for 20 minutes, do 400 situps and abdominal exercises to strengthen his stomach muscles.

After an hour or so rest period, training begins again with four rounds on the speed bag, four to six rounds on the double-end bag, a couple rounds of shadow boxing, another 20 minutes of jump rope, 400 more situps and more abdominal work.

During the past five weeks, Dorr's weight decreased from 210 to 179. He is six feet tall.

Dorr believes his greatest problems in the match will be caused by a lack of sparring partners for training and ring rust.

"I had hoped to find several sparring partners who knew how to box but I was unable to find these during most of the training time," he added.

Ring rust is a condition of being out of the boxing ring for a long period of time and makes a boxer protective of himself, Dorr said.

"This is why I have been working out so hard. I know I must be in top physical condition for the fight," he said.

Dorr said there are several worked extra days so Dorr could have time off to train.

"Kenny really sacrificed a lot of days so I could be off and a couple of Waveland police officers have also helped in my training," Dorr said.

"I am really excited about the fight but I can do well if I will just relax and do what I know to do," Dorr added.

reasons he wants to really do well in the match.

"First because the highway patrol is backing me and I will be representing the organization in the fight," he said.

Another reason is because there has been so much support from fellow state troopers including David Kenny and Freddie Keel, who

Bay Area Youth Soccer registration set

Bay Area Youth Soccer will hold late registration Saturday, Sept. 12 from 8 a.m. to noon at the Waveland Little League field.

The registration fee is $25 which includes the cost of the uniform, state and district soccer fees, a sports patch for playing in the 1987-88 season, and referee fees.

All youth ages 5-18 are invited to participate. Registration fees cover both the fall and spring seasons.

By BAYS' rules each player gets to play at least 50 percent of each game, regardless of skill.

Final registration must be in to the BAYS Soccer Board by Sept. 15.

Any youth considering Under-14 Select Team tryouts must also be registered with the BAYS recreation league by Sept. 15, in the recreational division. The BAYS recreational league uses volunteer coaches to help to develop each player's skills as an individual and as a team member so that each child is a winner, regardless of team standings.

The rewards lie in the fun of being able to play in an exciting, healthy environment.

Both boys and girls are encouraged to come and register for America's fastest growing sport.

Parents interested in volunteering their time and/or services to the league or just to find out more about the programs and benefits associated with your child's membership with Bay Area Youth Soccer may do so during the registration sessions.

After Sept. 19, coaches will notify each child of the practice schedule and the place and time of practice. The first fall games will begin on Saturday, Oct. 3.

BAYS U-14 Select tryouts cancelled

The tryouts for Bays U-14 Select Soccer Team scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 12 have been canceled, according to Dr. J. D. Rutherford III, team organizer.

Rutherford cited a late decision for team start-up and lack of adequate sponsorship as the prime reasons for abandoning the select program.

HAWKINS TO COMPETE—Waveland bodybuilder Charles Hawkins poses as he practices for two upcoming competitions, the Southeastern Grand Prix in Atlanta, Ga., on Saturday and the Mr. America Contest in Atlantic City, N.J. on Sept. 26. D.J. Inkol, a Pass Christian chiropractor. The bodybuilder is a member of Power House of Deliverance Church from which he also receives support. Hawkins' most recent titles include Mr. Florida. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Teal season opens Saturday

JACKSON—State waterfowl shooters will get their first taste of hunting ducks this weekend as the nine-day special teal season opens Saturday. The season will continue through Sept. 20.

Blue-winged and green-winged teal are some of the earliest waterfowl to migrate through Mississippi on their way south to wintering grounds.

The relatively small birds are known by many hunters for their twisting, turning, high-speed flight across open, shallow water marsh areas, according to the Department of Wildlife Conservation.

Teal feed on aquatic plants in these areas, biologists say. So, advanced scouting of a particular pond, lake, catfish pond, or reservoir should pay off.

First-time teal hunters can usually identify teal by looking for the birds in small, tight, fast-moving flocks. At close range blue-winged teal are small, dark-brown ducks with a sizeable light-blue patch on the upper leading edge of the wings. They readily respond to decoys.

State conservation enforcement officials in Jackson are reminding hunters that teal are the only ducks that can be hunted during this special nine-day season.

Shooting hours are sunrise until sunset. These hours are slightly different than the shooting hours during the regular duck season. The daily bag limit is four, and the possession limit is eight, with no possession limit on opening day.

Hunters 16 years old and over are required to purchase a federal duck stamp. A valid state hunting license is also needed. In addition hunters between 16 and 65 must have a $2 duck stamp.

As with hunting and federally protected migratory game bird, hunters must have their shotguns plugged and incapable of holding more than three shells. This year steel shot will be required statewide for hunting all waterfowl, including teal.

The Major defense limited TWC to seven first downs and 75 yards rushing.

Heading the Majors' defense was senior defensive lineman Scott Green with six tackles, three assists and one sack.

Defensive end Chuck Clayton had one quarterback sack and also recovered a fumble.

Others to watch: LB Clay Ranager, 3 tackles, 2 assist; FS Trac Baughn, 3 tackles, KOR-54 yards; SS Aubrey Falls, 6 tackles, 1 assist; LB Tommy Ponder, 5 tackles, 3 assists; and WB Chris Hemphill, 2 catches, 33 yards.

PFD: Isn't your life worth one?

If you have a 14-foot flat-bottom boat powered by an electric motor for a small lake or pond, you might not see the necessity of wearing a personal floatation device (PFD)—but you should because one of every four fatalities are drownings from small boats. But put yourself in a bass boat powered by a 150 h.p. V-6 outboard motor, and you'd better think twice about leaving it on the floor!

Ken Cook, Evinrude Outboard's Pro Staff member, best sums up the reason for wearing a PFD: "You ought to use it so you can go fishing again tomorrow!"

There are many PFDs on the market and I'm sure that you've seen a great variety of them at discount department stores, your local bait shop and marinas. But what kind is best for bass fishing? What do you look for in a vest designed for angling?

"As far as picking one out," Cook explains, "I have one that I prefer over anything that I've seen before. It's a jacket that's being marketed for skiers, it's a racing jacket. It has a zipper but it also has straps and underarm pads that protect your rib cage."

Most jackets have big arm holes to make them easier to get in and out of. But that leaves your rib cage on both sides exposed. If you do hit the water at a high rate of speed, the impact could knock you out because of the blow to your rib cage. It has a neck roll collar to minimize whiplash and it has leg straps."

Another favorite of the bass tournament circuit is the Johnson Pro Team Bass Vest. "I think it's a very innovative design, with the straps that clip around your belt so that it won't ride up," says Randy Fite, Johnson Outboard's Pro Staff member. "It also features an 'O-ring' for the kill switch and handy pockets."

But there are still drawbacks to PFDs for fishermen, according to Fite. "Some PFDs are so cumbersome that they really don't give me enough mobility for my style of fishing. I think the next step will be when someone can come up with a PFD that is attractive, comfortable and yet could float you upright if you were unconscious in the water."

No matter who you talk with, all the pros agree that you ought to secure your life vest before you turn your motor on and that the PFD should be worn at all times while on the water, whether or not the boat is moving.

Cook also makes a few more recommendations that makes a lot of sense.

"I would recommend that anyone who wears a PFD wear one that fits tight. If you end up in the water, especially if the water is cold and assuming you're not unconscious, you tire easily and lose energy and strength. The next thing you know, your arms are above your head and zip, you're jacket's off because of the big arm holes and lack of tightness around the body. It's got to be tight enough to cling to your torso so you won't come out of it. I think leg straps are by far the best choice in that type of situation."

There's also one more piece of advice Cook gives: "I never start my engine without putting my jacket on (in accordance with bass tournament rules) because I've got two little boys and I want to be their daddy from now on!"

Those are the two best reasons I've ever heard.

OMC Parts & Accessories has introduced a new digital tachometer, the OMC Quartach, for use with Johnson and Evinrude V-4 and V-6 outboard motors. The tach features large, easy-to-read display that's updated every quarter-second and it offers extreme accuracy with minimum fluctuation, according to OMC. It has solid state circuitry and a sealed quartz crystal for durability and accuracy. It's available at Evinrude and Johnson dealers.

Co-ops to offer profitable land management

By Patti Drapala
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Ask private landowners in Mississippi what the biggest problem is in land management and the answer will be trespassing.

Ask them if they could stand to make more money from their lands and the answer will be yes.

A project started by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service and the Tennessee Valley Authority to organize landowners into cooperatives can help individuals keep out trespassers and increase their income from their lands.

The project was begun in 1985 to improve wildlife and timber management on private land in the state, said Dr. Greg Yarrow, area wildlife and timber specialist with the Extension Service.

"Many of our forest lands in Mississippi are being mismanaged," Yarrow said. "This results in loss of income to the owners."

Landowners who have adjoining properties can increase income and pool resources by forming a cooperative. The cooperative can work with a land management consultant to devise a plan to increase income and control entry onto the properties.

"When I say cooperative, I'm talking about a loosely formed group of landowners," Yarrow said. "These cooperatives are not rigidly structured and they can't be."

If landowners organize a cooperative, they can identify common problems and work together to correct them. As a unified group, the co-op can also exert leadership and influence the community, thus discouraging trespassers by rallying public support.

Three demonstration models of land cooperatives were set up in 1985 by the Extension Service and TVA. The tracts are in northeast Mississippi: a 3,000 acre co-op in Alcorn County, a 5,500 acre co-op in Tishomingo and Itawamba counties, and a 6,000 acre co-op in Lee and Itawamba counties.

Landowners in the Tishomingo tract named their group the "Redbud League Conservation Cooperative" and are pleased with the result.

"Their first objective was to control their lands," Yarrow said. "During hunting season, many of these owners had people going through their soybean fields to get to the wild game. Other people were running their hunting dogs onto these properties."

After the Redbud co-op formed, the landowners found they could eliminate such unethical hunting on their lands. Two years later, the co-op is considering leasing the land for authorized hunting. Leasing will give Redbud the option of making money from wildlife resources and maintaining trespasser control.

Landowners can manage for wildlife or timber, or combine the two. The choice is up to each cooperative. "The number one thing we ask our landowners is what they want to do with their properties," Yarrow said.

Rocks to battle St. John Eagles

The St. Stanislaus Rockachaws and the St. John Eagles will tangle Friday night in a varsity football game to be played at Rockachaw Stadium.

The Rocks were beaten by a seasoned Pope John Paul squad 20-6 last week, while St. John rolled over Pass Christian 58-6.

In the Pope John Paul contest, the Rocks had narrowed the score to 13-6 midway through the third quarter, and battled the Jaguars down to the wire.

"Our overall effort against Pope John Paul was very good. We were a victim, primarily, of first-game jitters and mistakes," noted head coach Ken Lyons. "However, our offensive and defensive teams 'kept coming at them' and never gave up."

"We need more work on blocking technique and secondary coverages. Also, recognizing open receivers needs more attention," stated Coach Lyons.

SSC has made some alignment adjustments and has changed some blocking assignments for the upcoming St. John game.

"Truthfully," continued Coach Lyons, "we were all very disappointed by Friday night's loss. This was a game that we felt we could have won, if it were not for our mistakes. I am not saying, however, that we should have won because Pope John Paul deserves their due credit."

St. John will run out of a two tight-end formation, or wing set. The Eagles do a lot of power running behind their offensive linemen. Defensively, the Eagles use a 4-man front, with a lot of stacked linebackers.

"Their front four linemen are very impressive," said coach Lyons. "Against Pass Christian they did everything well."

Coach Lyons remains very optimistic about the season. "I still think and believe that we have the ingredients of a good ball club. The means of developing our talent is my full responsibility. After a few games, I expect St. Stanislaus to be a team to be reckoned with."

1987 Rebel Outlook

When Coach Billy Brewer begins his fifth season at the helm of the Ole Miss football program this fall, the Rebels will field an experienced squad which features nine returning starters on each side of the ball.

Fifty lettermen are back from last year's team which posted an 8-3-1 record, including a 20-17 win over Texas Tech in the Independence Bowl. While the Rebels came away with a second place finish (4-2) in the Southeastern Conference and the Independence Bowl title, Brewer was honored by United Press International as its SEC Coach of the Year, marking the second time he has earned the league's Coach of the Year honors.

For the first time since Brewer's return, the Rebels will finally field a team with enough depth to compete in the rugged SEC. A closer look at the depth chart show 32 upperclassmen filling the top 44 spots (22 on offense and 22 on defense). Only tight end Mario Perry, wide receiver Ricky Myers, defensive tackle Mike Fitzsimmons, and free safety Jeff Noblin are missing from the lineup which started the 1986 finale against Texas Tech.

Offensively, Rebel starters returning include quarterback Mark Young, tailback Willie Goodloe, fullback Joe Mickles, center Robb Goff, guards Derek King and Rich Adamcik, Tackles Jay Schimmel and Todd Irvin, and flanker J.R. Ambrose.

Defensive starters back this fall are ends Wesley Walls and Lopaz Jones, tackle Rodney Lowe, nose guard Daryl Smith, linebackers Jeff Herrod and Robert Smith, cornerbacks Don Price and Stevon Moore, and strong safety Howard Moss.

Young, who shattered most of Archie Manning's Ole Miss bowl records with his independence Bowl performance, begins 1987 as the No. 1 quarterback after having shared the starting duties with Chris Osgood last season. "Mark is probably the most underrated quarterback in the SEC," Brewer says. "He's started eight games for us and we've won six."

Ambrose, considered one of the best wide receivers in this year's senior class after making third team All-America as a junior, could be in for his finest season. "J.R. has that natural athletic ability and can turn a game around. We want him to be involved as much offensively as he can. He's going to make something happen almost everytime he touches the ball."

Goodloe, who is expected to share starting duties with Shawn Sykes, led the team in rushing last year with 526 yards and Mickles finished second with 359, accounting for more yards rushing than the remaining backs.

The 1987 Ole Miss squad will have more depth at almost every position, especially in the offensive line where past Rebel teams have continued to struggle.

"We've had to do a patch job in the offensive line the last three years," Brewer noted. "It appears, at least on paper, that we've helped ourselves in that area, along with the running back and quarterback positions, where we have good depth and good quality there. Depth is so important when you attempt to compete in the SEC."

Unlike past years when the Rebel coaching staff used the spring to move players around, that wasn't the case this time. Offensive unit changes were minor with some wide receivers switching sides, while defensive changes of note included

Tony Bennett moving from end to nose guard and Wayne Muckle going from nose to tackle. Bennett should share starting duties with Smith.

Tight end appears to be a wide open position heading into the fall with Greg Lee and James Smith returning lettermen along with newcomer Shawn Sowder, a junior college transfer. Lee has been hampered with various injuries and Brewer is hopeful those days are in the past.

One area posing some concern is in the kicking game where All-America punter Bill Smith is gone. Smith, who set four NCAA career records, did most of the punting for the Rebels the last four years.

"You aren't going to replace Bill Smith," Brewer said. "He (Smith) was a major force in our being competitive over the last few years. We didn't sign a punter, because we feel we have some folks back who deserve a chance to perform at that position."

The top returnee is senior Kevin Hurt, a left-footer who punted only twice as a freshman before going on the injury list in 1985. Freshman red-shirt Charles Childers could be Hurt's toughest competition for the job.

Junior Bryan Owen is back to once again handle placekicking duties and Brewer doesn't expect a change at that spot. "Bryan has the job until someone takes it away."

Defensively, much of the spring was used to come away with getting 22 players ready to step into the action. The Rebels appear deep at defensive end and Wesley Walls rates as one of the best athletes on the team. "We'll be trying to get Wesley more involved in our scheme. He's big and strong and can run."

With no established depth at tackle, Brewer feels it is important for some of the younger players to come on fast. Rodney Lowe and Lester Brinkley have gained the most experience to date, while Dan Wigley has lettered, but has been hampered with a knee problem.

Herrod, a second team All-America pick last year when he led the Rebels in tackles, heads the linebacking corps. Although injuries in the secondary last year hurt, it did give Price and Moss a chance to gain valuable experience, a fact which Brewer feels will make the Rebel secondary a strong point.

As far as the SEC schedule, Ole Miss will host Georgia and Vanderbilt on the Oxford campus, play LSU and Mississippi State in Jackson, and pay visits to Tennessee and Kentucky. Non-conference games are with Arkansas, Arkansas State, and Southwestern Louisiana at home and Memphis State and Tulane on the road.

Although Brewer continues to take a cautiously optimistic approach, the Rebels have gained a greater degree of respect since he took over the helm prior to the 1983 campaign.

One national publication has even picked the '87 Ole Miss team to finish 4th in the SEC and 19th in the nation.

With this year's team unable to participate on TV or play in a bowl game, due to NCAA sanctions, Brewer's 1987 squad could be one of the closest in the school's history. As one player put it, "Every game is a bowl game this year."

For Billy Brewer and the Rebels, 1987 represents another building block in the process of returning Ole Miss to football greatness.

Stanislaus is starting over again

St. Stanislaus, a school with its share of football history, is starting from scratch this year.

The Bay St. Louis school that produced Army running back Felix "Doc" Blanchard in the 1930s had a 1-9 record last year, and it's been a long time since the last winning season.

But Ken Lyons, the school's first year coach, who formerly was an assistant at Riverside Academy and Salem High School, is out to change that. Unfortunately, he has a complete rebuilding job on his hands.

The Rockchaws compete in Mississippi's second-highest division, Class AAAA.

Lyons hopes to install the option offense that helped Riverside Academy to four LISA state titles during his tenure. The key is at quarterback, where Lyons feels sophomore Shannon Garrett (5-10, 155) fits right in.

Other noteworthy offensive players include senior fullback Jorge Ponjuan (6-3, 185), who started last year, senior wide receiver Fred Wirstrom (6-3, 185) and offensive linemen Chuck Lavinghouse (6-4, 283) and Justin Homes (5-10, 175).

The defense will be led by linemen Shane Harris (5-10, 180) and Vincent Bradley (5-11, 165), end Craig Sweeney (6-5, 190), linebacker Gino Ascani (5-6, 150) and defensive back Yasin Shabazz (5-10, 155).

must have their guns plugged and incapable of holding more than three shells. They will need a valid hunting license in their possession before going afield.

Duck Flight similar

The fall migration of ducks and geese southward this year is expected to be similar in numbers to last year, according to officials at the Department of Wildlife Conservation in Jackson.

Duck populations are essentially unchanged from 1986, with the fall flight this year projected at about 75 million birds. Last year's fall flight was the second lowest since 1969.

This year the fall flight forecast for most goose populations is similar to last year's. Nesting conditions for-geese were generally good in most areas.

In the Mississippi Flyway fall flights of Canada geese will be much the same as last year. Giant Canada geese will have an increased fall flight. The numbers of lesser snow geese will be slightly lower than last year.

The size of the duck migration is estimated annually by biologists with the Canadian Wildlife Service and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. They conduct ground and air surveys in May and July of habitat conditions and breeding populations and brood production.

Sept. 26 is NHF Day

In recognition of National Hunting and Fishing Day and its 16-year history of making millions of Americans aware of sportsmen's contributions to wildlife conservation, the theme of this year's event will be "We're Shooting for the Future."

"Through National Hunting and Fishing Day ceremonies, we are emphasizing the critical role of sportsmen in conserving our wildlife and natural resources for the enjoyment of future generations," Department of Wildlife Conservation executive director Joe Stone said.

The 1987 observance of NHF Day in Mississippi is set for Sept. 26.

Dove Season

One final reminder to hunters. This upcoming Saturday, Sept. 5 is the beginning of the first dove season in Mississippi. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise until sunset, unless otherwise restricted.

The season will continue through Sept. 20.

This year dove shooters will be permitted a 15-bird per day bag limit. The increased bag limit came at the option of reducing by ten the total number of hunting days during the fall and winter dove hunting period. The possession limit will be 30, with no possession limit permitted on the opening day of any season. Hunters should know that they

OLE MISS' Adamcik Looks for improvement

By Mark Brock
Sports Information Assistant
Rich Adamcik, a 6-4, 268 pound senior offensive guard, is looking for some improvement from himself and his offensive line teammates to help improve Ole Miss' running game for the 1987 football season.

The Oklahoma City, Okla. native is one of the returning starters on the offensive line which lost only tight end Mario Perry to graduation last year.

"I hope to improve my skills going into the season and hopefully this will help us on the line this fall," said Adamcik.

Adamcik was a transfer from Northeast Oklahoma A&M in 1986. He won a starting job as guard in August drills last fall and started all 11 regular season games and the Rebels win over Texas Tech in the Independence Bowl last December.

While playing at the strong guard position, Adamcik played a key role in helping Ole Miss rush for 100 yards-or-more in the last eight games of the 1986 season. That streak is the longest for the Rebels since the 1980 campaign.

"I see our team as a hard working group with good unity and confidence in ourselves to have a good season," added Adamcik.

Adamcik showed his dedication to improvement by staying in Oxford during the summer and working to get into better shape for fall drills.

"Rich is a good athlete and did a respectable job for us last season," said offensive line coach Robert McGraw. "He has been doing a good job in pre-season drills so far and we believe Rich has the ability to be even better going into the season."

With Adamcik striving for improvement along with his offensive line teammates, the Rebel front line could show a marked improvement in opening holes for the Ole Miss running attack during the 1987 football season.

Billy Brewer TV lineup set

For the first time in history, the Ole Miss football playback show will be transmitted via satellite.

Beginning Sunday, Sept. 6, the Billy Brewer Show will be uplinked by Comsat Communications in Memphis on C-Band.

"This has been an exciting project for us," said Langston Rogers, assistant athletic director for sports information. "Not only will our regular TV lineup be able to receive the program at their stations, people with home satellite receivers will be able to pick up the program as it's being transmitted."

Comsat will be transmitting on Telstar 301, 11 Vertical/Channel 21, Audio subcarrier 6.2 and 6.8 from 1:00 to 1:30 p.m. (CST) and again from 2:00 to 2:30 p.m. (CST) each Sunday during the season.

Hancock County Library first to have NASA video tapes

Through the cooperative effort of NASA, Mississippi Power Company and the University of Mississippi, the Hancock County Library System has available video taped copies of 30 educational science programs, according to Prima Wusnach, library system director.

The library became the first educational institution in the state to copy the programs using video tape duplicating equipment donated to NASA by the Mississippi Power Company and housed in a special mobile transporting cabinet built by the University of Mississippi.

NASA is providing the equipment and master tapes to public libraries and private and public schools throughout the state in order to make the programming available to students and the general public.

Jerry Brown, chief of the National Space Technology Laboratories educational program, said, "Mississippi Power, USM and NASA have seen the need for the state's students to have access to the latest in aerospace education. And, I think having access to these programs might encourage them to pursue science-related careers."

From the more than 300 videotapes on file in the Teacher Resource Center, NASA chose the top 30 to send out with the duplicating unit. For specific requests, librarians and school teachers can contact the Teacher Resource Center at NSTL in Hancock County, said Brown.

VIDEO TAPES of NASA science programs are available at Hancock County Library on US-90 in Bay St. Louis. Library director Prima Wusnach, left, and library staff member Vivian Crosby test the tapes on library equipment.

Sakharov to address USM supporters

HATTIESBURG—Onetime Soviet diplomat and intelligence operative Vladimir N. Sakharov will discuss the East-West conflict in the Middle East Sept. 25 during a scheduled speech at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Sakharov, who defected to the United States after serving as a KGB agent and Soviet diplomat from 1967-72, will be the featured speaker at a 7:30 p.m. "Charter Weekend Celebration" dinner for members of USM's Honor Giving Clubs.

Author of the highly acclaimed book, "High Treason," and the holder of a doctorate in international relations from the University of Southern California, Sakharov will speak on the topic, "The Explosive Middle East in the context of Soviet-American Rivalry."

Sakharov, a Moscow native whose family belonged to the Russian elite, held diplomatic and intelligence assignments that put him at the heart of the KGB operations in the Middle East.

He was one of the first sources to provide the U.S. government with details of the Middle Eastern terrorist network and of specific operations aimed at the United States.

Now an American citizen, Sakharov serves as a consultant to several U.S. and multinational companies on inter-Arab affairs, foreign economic risk management, Opec and international law. He also is a senior adviser to the Jamestown Foundation in Washington, D.C.

The "Charter Weekend Celebration" Sept. 25-26 kicks off with the Friday evening dinner, preceded by a 6:30-7:30 p.m. social, and continues Saturday morning with a "USM Report" by Dr. Aubrey K.

Lucas, university president, during an 8:30 a.m. business meeting at the Union Lounge. There also will be a breakfast at 7:30 a.m.

The USM Golden Eagles will meet Texas A&M at 1 p.m. that Saturday afternoon in a scheduled clash at Mississippi Memorial Stadium in Jackson.

The purpose of the "Charter Weekend Celebration," according to USM officials, is to honor and recognize members of the Honor Giving Clubs, who have made significant financial commitments dedicated to the improvement of university academic programs.

The Honor Giving Clubs include three levels of financial commitment—the President's Circle, the Heritage Society and the Associates for Excellence. Membership in the clubs is available to all alumni and friends of the institution.

SSC invites parents to come back-to-school

St. Stanislaus High School will host a "Back-to-School" program for parents and teachers Sunday afternoon, Sept. 13, beginning at 2 p.m.

According to Brother Paul Montero, SC, principal, the purpose of the "mock school day" is to give parents the opportunity to learn more about their sons' academic programs by following the daily schedule for seven-minute "classes" during the course of the afternoon.

During the "classes," teachers will explain their classroom procedure, homework and testing, aims and goals.

The "school day" will conclude with a social in the Student Mall.

"This is one more way to involve our parents more and more in their sons' academic life," said Brother Paul.

The Disease Preoccupation

With so many modern Americans hyped up on physical fitness and just as many or more preoccupied over diseases and their causes and cures, there's little wonder that health news occupies such a prominent spot in today's culture.

The American Farm Bureau Federation which represents the farmers and ranchers who grow most of this nation's foodstuffs recently circulated a consumer-oriented newsletter of diet and health news tidbits from around the nation. They're saying it all these days, or trying to.

Among the ailments getting a lot of dietary attention these days are cancer and heart problems.

Concerning cancer, a clippingsheet from various health publications pointed out recently that diet is an important factor in about one-third of all cancers, according to the Cancer Institute. Of $368 million spent by NCI on cancer's cause and prevention, $80 million is earmarked for preventing cancer by nutrition and dietary measures. In general, the group suggests that the risk of cancer can be reduced by eating a variety of foods, cutting down on fat, staying low in calories, and increasing the fiber foods such as fruits, vegetables, beans, and whole grain cereals and breads.

Yet another publication, Nutrition Week, points out that NCI's claim that dietary fiber prevents colon cancer has been refuted by the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

However, researchers at the Akbar Clinic and Research Center in Panama City, Florida reportedly have found that people who ate 2 to 3 heads of garlic a day for three weeks showed large increases in activity in white blood cells. When cells were placed in a lab dish with a variety of cancerous tumor tissues, these cells killed up to 160 percent more tumor cells than cells from people who had not eaten garlic.

Meanwhile, the Supermarket News points out that retailers are promoting fruits and vegetables as a means of reducing cancer, and the Tufts University Diet and Nutrition Letter is pointing out that the link between dietary fat and breast cancer is not clear at present. The letter states that while a lifetime of eating high-fat foods has long been connected to promoting breast cancer, a four-year study of 90,000 subjects who were surveyed for their alcoholic consumption, indicates that a daily diet in which fat comprises just 32 percent of total calories is no more likely to protect against the disease than one that is a full 44 percent fat. Researchers, the item says, now think that a diet must be lower in fat than 32 percent in order to reduce the risk. That theory is based on the fact that Japanese women who eat only 15-20 percent of their calories as fat have a low incidence of breast cancer.

On the heart side lately, a publication called Prevention points out that an "increase in dietary potassium may prevent strokes, according to a California study of 850 people over a 12 year period. The study too found a startling correlation between one factor and the incidence of stroke-related death. That correlation was not blood pressure but potassium, as not one stroke-associated death occurred in the California study among the people whose diets contained the highest levels of potassium.

Research in South Dakota reported in Nutrition Research Newsletter adds that 24 hypertensive women over 40 years of age were given 1 gram of calcium carbonate for 12 weeks. Over the period, both the systolic and diastolic blood pressures fell. The researchers suggested that the loss of sodium may have been responsible for the decreases in blood pressure.

Two nutrition newsletters also point out that fat kids have increased by 40 percent in the last 15 years—attributable in part to fast foods, television, and decreased physical activity.

MRS. RICHARD CICHON, a faculty member at St. Stanislaus High School, will be one of the Eucharistic Ministers at the Mass celebrated by Pope John Paul II at U.N.O. on Saturday, September 12.

Teenage Suicide Continues Increase

By Norine Barnes
Child and Family Development Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Many youngsters are under a great deal of stress. This stress may lead to distress and then to depression. Depression is an emotional state characterized by intense sadness, hopelessness or despair and is widespread among American adolescents.

Depression takes many forms and has a wide variety of symptoms. It can range in intensity from a case of the blues to a chronic and recurring state of despair so severe that outside help is needed to overcome it. Although most people occasionally suffer from the blues, prolonged depression can have serious consequences that hinder an individual's capacity to function.

Many mental health professionals think adolescents experience masked depression or behaviors that are indirect evidence of their depression. These indirect evidences include low school achievement, school phobia, drug and alcohol abuse, anorexia nervosa, social isolation, sexual promiscuity and delinquency.

While depression is associated with a wide variety of anti-social and dysfunctional adolescent behaviors, it's not always clear whether depression preceded or followed the behaviors.

Whatever the case, these behaviors can be viewed as warning signals of depression. All such behaviors have one thing in common, that is, they are ultimately self-destructive.

Depression is highly correlated with adolescent suicide. Among 15 to 19-year-olds, suicide is now the third leading cause of death.

The rate of adolescent suicide began increasing in the mid-1950s and has tripled since 1960. Eighty-five percent of all adolescents think about suicide at some time, and 50 percent make some plan or seriously consider suicide as a means of solving their problems.

Every year approximately 4,000 to 5,000 15 to 24-year-olds do take their own lives. There is a higher rate of completed suicide for males, although females have higher rates of attempted suicides.

Allen honored at conference

Doris Allen, practical nursing instructor at the Pearl River Junior College, Hancock County Vocational-Technical Center in Bay St. Louis, has been honored by a group of her peers at the State Vocational Education Conference which was recently held at Mississippi State University.

On August 5, 1987, she received the Alumnus of the Year Award from the Mississippi Association of Vocational Educators and on August 7, 1987 she received the Outstanding Educator of the Year Award from Health Occupations Educators of Mississippi.

Allen's nursing experiences have been varied. After graduating from the McComb Infirmary School of Nursing (Diploma Program), she did private duty for a group of Thoracic Surgeons. She worked as staff nurse at Methodist Hospital at Hattiesburg on the medical-surgical unit. She was medical-surgical supervisor at Franklin County Hospital and operating room supervisor for four years at Field Memorial Hospital.

She then moved to the Gulf Coast with her husband, Lawrence, and their two children, Debbie and Stuart. She was newborn nursery supervisor at Memorial Hospital and then went to work in an office for a group of Surgeons.

She was medical-surgical supervisor at Hancock Medical Center for two years, and taught a pilot program for operating room technicians at Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior college. In 1970, Allen was employed as a Practical Nursing Instructor by Pearl River Junior College and has remained in that capacity since that time.

Allen received her B.S. degree from the University of Southern Mississippi with a major in education and nursing, and a minor in psychology. She received her M.Ed. degree from the University of Georgia in health occupations education with special emphasis on leadership and curriculum. While at Georgia, Allen wrote a book on the metric system to be used in Georgia schools in their changeover to the metric system.

She has recently completed course requirements for a B.S. degree in nursing at the University of South Alabama and will enter the M.S.N. Program this quarter.

Allen is a member of the faculty association of Pearl River Junior College, Mississippi Association of Vocational Educators (MAVE), Health Occupational Educators (HOE), and Mississippi Association of Practical Nursing Educators (MAPNES). She has served in various offices of each organization.

She has taught in the practical nursing program at Pearl River Junior College for sixteen years and feels that the practical nurse will continue to be a vital member of the health care team.

About 150 Nursing students have graduated from Allen's programs since the Hancock County Vocational-Technical Center opened in 1973 and 110 were placed in employment as licensed practical nurses shortly after graduation.

JILL JACKSON'S HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD: "The 'Untouchables' continues its box office romp with star-watchers likening Kevin Costner to a young Robert Stack. Granted there's a slight physical resemblance and a certain way he cocks his head, but Costner's performance as Eliot Ness stands on its own — solid, real, believable. Robert De Niro's Al Capone is a masterpiece, and Sean Connery has never been better than as Malone, the cop who teaches Ness how to work Chicago.

Mickey Rooney, in a costume that makes him look like a striped rubber ball, is bouncing about the stage of Hollywood's Pantages Theater in "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum." Adding his own personal "schtick" and ad-libs to the already funny book by Larry Gelbart and the late Burt Shevelove, "the Mick" has more fun than anybody. He plays through July 19th.

Hollywood continues to celebrate its 100th birthday. Centennial week highlight was the Pro-Celebrity Tennis Classic with old-time greats like Ellie Vines, Bobby Riggs, Alice Marble, Vic Seixias, Don Budge, Jack Kramer and Pancho Segura swapping shots with John Forsythe, Whoopi Goldberg, Carl Reiner, Kristy McNichol, Lloyd Bridges, Dick Van Patten, Ben Murphy and Mary Hart. A lot of money was raised toward the Hollywood Historic Fund what with tickets going from $85 to $175.

HOLLYWOOD IS READING: Starring Mothers by Barbara Walz and Jill Barber (Doubleday/Dolphin) featuring photos and interviews with famous women who have combined motherhood and careers. Carly Simon says, "During the five months I was nursing Sarah I wrote songs. A lot of rock 'n' roll tunes in my album started in the nursery." ### Cataracts Are Common In Some Dog Breeds

By Robert K. McDonald
Assistant Professor
College of Veterinary Medicine
Mississippi State University

Just like people, your dog may be stricken with cataracts that in some cases can cause blindness.

A cataract is defined as any opacity in the lens of the eye. The primary purpose of the lens is to help focus light onto the back of the eye so an image can be seen. Opacities in the lens can vary in size from very small to so large that they cause complete blindness.

Cataracts may occur in any breed, but are common in cocker spaniels, poodles and Boston terriers. Most cataracts in dogs under 6 years of age are inherited.

Cataracts may also be caused by poor nutrition and life-threatening diseases such as diabetes. Exposure to certain toxins or head injury also may cause cataracts.

Many older dogs have a bluish-gray, hazy appearance in their eyes. This is an aging change in the lens called nuclear sclerosis. It does not significantly interfere with vision. An examination at your veterinarian can tell the difference between this condition and cataracts.

Surgical removal of the lens is the only effective treatment for cataracts. Surgery is needed when loss of vision is such that the dog is unable to perform its regular activities to the owner's satisfaction. A check of the dog's vision should determine whether surgery is needed or whether there is a reason other than the cataract for poor vision.

Annual physical examinations are important for your dog's health. If cataracts are detected early, they can be re-evaluated periodically to determine their progression. If your dog is already having vision problems, consult your veterinarian for an eye examination.

Mississippi author's third book scheduled for October release

Less than one year ago, Bob Neill was just one more Mississippi Delta farmer, caught in the "crunch" of America's rural economic crisis, with no other means of support.

Today, he has just accepted shipment of his second book, "How To Lose Your Farm In Ten Easy Lessons And Cope With It," and his third one, "Going Home," is in the initial stages of publication, scheduled for October delivery.

His newspaper column, "The Brownspur Bugle," which originated in the Leland Progress, is mailed to over one-third of the state's papers, and one of these columns was picked from the Vicksburg Evening Post by Paul Harvey and broadcast nationwide on Harvey's radio program.

Neill writes the monthly column for Fins and Feathers magazine, and his articles appeared in 15 magazines during the past year, including Reader's Digest, Southern Outdoors, and Turkey Call.

Mississippi magazine has contracted with the author for a regular column starting late this year; and Farm Press Publication has secured interviews for future publication.

In addition to his writing, Neill has also become a professional storyteller and has averaged speaking several times a week for the past eight months to various groups, including civic clubs, churches, seminars, schools, libraries, hunting organizations and banquets.

Neill's oldest daughter, Christie, attends Tulane in her senior year, and she's the best proreader in the family, according to her father.

Their son, Adam, just graduated from Washington School, where he pitched for the Generals' 30-2 State AAA baseball champions and won their "Positive Attitude" award.

He will attend Millsaps this fall to study in pre-med; he also plans to pitch for the Majors.

Betsy Claire, the youngest, will be the only child at home next year. She is a ninth grader at Washington School and is active in dramatics productions.

Is the writing over for a while, or at best caught up? "Lord, no!" he grins. "I'm about two-thirds through with a novel now, and have been approached about national syndication of The Brownspur Bugle.

Bob Tompkins and I (Tompkins, a Greenville wildlife artist, is Neill's partner in Mississippi River Publishing Company) are already planning another book for fall of '88, probably on hunting dogs and wildlife pets, with the same art/humor/nostalgia format of The Flaming Turkey and Going Home.

And both Random House and Nick Lyons Sporting Books are talking with us about reprint rights on our first three. Things look real good," the author said.

cluding civic clubs, churches, seminars, schools, libraries, hunting organizations and banquets.

"I've always been a storyteller," he says, "that's really the basis for my writing. But when I started getting so many engagements, I had a lady from the National Association for the Preservation and Perpetuation of Storytelling contact me, so I joined NAPPs. I may participate in the National Storytelling Festival this October in Jonesboro, Tenn. I'll be close to there, at Sweetwater, that week for the Southeastern Outdoor Press Association Convention. I've been asked to enter The Flaming Turkey and several of my articles in their Excellence in Craft competition."

Neill has appeared on television and radio shows "25 or 30 times" since The Flaming Turkey made its debut in December, and has even helped produce three TV specials on the farm crisis. His storytelling goes along with that. "I combine humorous and nostalgic incidents from our rural way of life to illustrate some of the points I make about the farm situation," he says. "The Southern Baptists have even approached me about making a video cassette program for them."

It all started with The Flaming Turkey, and many of those stories appeared in the Leland Progress prior to the book's publication.

According to the writer, "the encouragement I got from hometown folks in reaction to those early articles is what made me decide to publish." The Flaming Turkey has sold over three-fourths of its original 5,000 printing in seven months, and will have to be reprinted this summer.

"That's making for a real financial crunch right now," he sighs, "but I guess that's a good problem to have. What with printing 10,000 of the farm books, 10,000 Going Home books, and 10,000 reprints of The Flaming Turkey, we're stretched." Then he grins, "But I'll sell most of them in November and December!"

It's been hard on Bob's wife, Betsy, who is sales representative for

ASK OCHSNER

Q. My husband frequently gets hiccups. Is it know what causes hiccups and what can you do to stop them A.C. Crosby, Miss.

A. Almost everyone at some time in their lives has had the hiccups. It's not unusual for expectant mothers to notice that their babies are having hiccups in the womb. Hiccups are the repeated, involuntary spasmodic contractions of the diaphragm. They involve not only the diaphragm, the big muscle which separates the chest from the abdomen, but also the nerve that connects the diaphragm to the brain.

Dr. Richard Lopes, an internist at Ochsner Clinic, New Orleans, says hiccups affect both men and women, but seem to be more common in men. Causes of long-term hiccups result from irritation of nerves from the brain that control the breathing muscles. The cause of short hiccup episodes is unknown, although some hiccup episodes may be caused by: swallowing hot or irritating substances, diseases of the lung, alcoholism, use of certain prescription drugs, disorders of the stomach, esophagus, bowel or pancreas, pregnancy, bladder irritation or even emotional causes.

Your risk of getting hiccups increases with illness, recent abdominal surgery and the use of drugs, especially those that irritate the stomach.

There are a number of cures for short hiccup episodes, Dr. Lopes says. Some of these include:

Hold your breath and count to 10. Breathe into a paper bag, and rebreathe the air in the bag. (Don't use a plastic bag for this.)

Drink a glass of water rapidly. Swallow dry bread or crushed ice. Pull gently on the tongue.

Close eyelids and apply gentle pressure to the eyeballs.

Dr. Lopes says short hiccup episodes usually don't indicate disease. They usually subside in time or after using some of the general treatment measures listed above. Continued hiccups, however, can be debilitating and may require medical attention to determine the cause. If you have hiccups that last eight hours or more or if you suspect a prescription drug may be causing hiccups, it's best to call your doctor.

Q. A friend of mine has warned me to start checking my moles and freckles for skin cancer. She had a skin cancer removed from her shoulder a couple of years ago. Can you actually detect skin cancer yourself? L.S., Franklinton, La.

A. According to Dr. Marilyn Ray, a dermatologist at Ochsner Clinic, New Orleans, regular self examinations of your body is the best way to guard against skin cancer. By familiarizing yourself with your skin and your own pattern of moles, freckles and "beauty marks" you will know first-hand if there are any changes in the number, size, shape and color of those pigmented areas.

Most people have a number of small colored spots on their bodies, including moles, freckles and birthmarks. The average young adult has at least 25 brown moles. A few of these spots are present at birth while most others develop throughout life. A change in a mole may be the first sign of an early malignant melanoma or other form of skin cancer. And, if the disease such as melanoma penetrates deep enough it can spread quickly to the lymph nodes, lungs, brain and other parts of the body, Dr. Ray says.

With the help of a mirror, you should examine your skin, including hard to see areas (mouth, back, scalp, buttocks, etc.) Pay special attention to their sizes, shapes, edges and color.

The easiest way to remember the warning signs is to know the "ABCD" check, Dr. Ray says. A - asymmetry, one half doesn't match the other half; B - border irregularity, edges are spreading off the border into surrounding skin; C - color, the pigmentation is not uniform. Shades of tan and brown are present. Dashes of red, white and blue add to the mottled appearance; D - diameter, greater than six millimeters (about the size of a pencil eraser.) Any more growth in size should be of concern.

Prevention is the best defense against skin cancer. This is a matter of guarding the skin against known causes such as the sun and its ultraviolet rays, Dr. Ray says. It's estimated that half of all skin cancers could be prevented if children between the ages of one and ten years old used sunscreen of SPF 15 or higher when they are in the sun for any length of time. Early detection of skin cancer by routine self examinations is the safest way to cure the disease.

Danger - Children and Lighters

KEEP CIGARETTE LIGHTERS AWAY FROM YOUNG CHILDREN

Do you know that your 3 year old child may be capable of lighting your cigarette lighter?

About 200 deaths each year are associated with fires started by cigarette lighters. Of these, an estimated 140 deaths are the result of children playing with lighters; most of the victims are less than 5 years old. Children who survive such fires are often severely burned, resulting in disfigurement for life and emotional adjustment problems. Many of these tragedies are avoidable.

Cigarette lighters, particularly disposable ones, are fascinating to many children. They —

- are colorful,
- fit easily into a small hand,
- have a wheel that turns and emits sparks, and
- produce a small flame.

This is a recipe for disaster. Children less than five years are twice as likely to die in a fire as older age groups and this is largely because of fires started by children playing with matches or lighters. Children as young as two or three years are known to have ignited these fires. When a fire occurs, children frequently run and hide rather than informing an adult or trying to escape.

NEVER ALLOW YOUR CHILD TO PLAY WITH A LIGHTER

Keep lighters out of sight and out of your child's reach. Never encourage a child to play with a lighter or to think of it as a toy. Do not use it as a source of amusement for a child. Once their curiosity is aroused, children may seek out a lighter and try to light it.

Remember - Small children can light cigarette lighters!

ETV Brief

FUTURE IN SPACE

"The Great Space Race," the four-part series examining the plans for man's future in space and the increasing competition around the globe for a foothold in this new frontier, will be rebroadcast at 10 p.m., Saturdays, beginning Sept. 12, on Mississippi ETV. The series was first broadcast in May 1986.

The series presents a television first as it goes on location inside the highly secretive Chinese and Soviet space programs as well as those of Europe, Japan and the United States.

It reveals the plans being formulated in the Soviet Union and the United States for mining operations on the moon by the turn of the century, for colonies on Mars by the year 2035 and for a new world of space-planes, spaceports, space hotels and other commercial establishments in the sky.

"The Great Space Race" also explores the critical and revolutionary advances that space technology is bringing to man's ability to manage Earth's climate and resources and documents how dependent on space technology man has already become in simply living as humans now do on Earth.

*Be careful when preparing foodsGood food buys

Summertime is fun time. Don't let food-borne illness spoil your fun. Summer's the perfect time to start a new approach to food handling safety.

As you know, food poisoning is a bigger problem in warm weather, and food poisoning is on the rise right now in general. Last year listeria, salmonella, even cholera claimed lives across the country in separate, serious outbreaks.

Sometimes these problems begin in plants and restaurants, but more often—public health research shows—dangerous food handling practices occur at home.

In an important 1985 study of Oregon home food preparers, investigator Dr. Margy Woodburn found a high percentage of home "chefs" consistently making basic food preparation mistakes of the kind that could cause illness.

Generally speaking, people fixing food at home make mistakes of a very basic nature. Therefore, to keep correct the situation, the Food Safety and Inspection Service of the United States Department of Agriculture has worked up six commandments of Basic Food Safety.

These rules are repeated in the following recipes featuring Mississippi Foods.

1. Keep it safe, refrigerate. Refrigerate foods you'll use quickly.

Freeze raw meat or poultry you can't use in one or two days. Freezer should register 0 degrees F; refrigerator, 40 degrees F.

2. Don't thaw food on the kitchen counter. Bacteria multiply rapidly at room temperature.

3. Wash hands and utensils after contact with raw meat and poultry. Wash cutting boards or other work surfaces too. Bacteria, often present on raw foods, can spread to other foods if you don't.

4. Never leave perishable food out over two hours.

5. Thoroughly cook raw meat, poultry and fish. Most bacteria die at 160 degrees F or above.

6. Freeze or refrigerate leftovers promptly. To re-use, reheat leftovers to bubbling—about 185 degrees F. Previously cooked and stored food is highly vulnerable to spoilage and food poisoning.

CHICKEN AND ZUCCHINI
3 chicken breast halves, boneless without skin
2 teaspoons oil
1 garlic clove, quartered
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1/3 cup thinly sliced celery
2 ounce can mushroom slices, drained
1 cup zucchini squash, cut in thin strips
2 teaspoons cornstarch
3 tablespoons water

Wash chicken in cold running water to remove surface bacteria. Drain on clean paper towel. Slice chicken in 1/8 inch strips. Wash hands after contact with the raw chicken. Heat oil in a nonstick frypan. Add chicken and garlic. Stir constantly until cooking chicken turns white (5 minutes).

Remove garlic pieces. Stir in soy sauce, celery, mushrooms, and squash. Cook covered, until vegetables are tender/crisp (4 minutes). Mix cornstarch with water until smooth. Stir slowly into chicken mixture. Continue cooking until ingredients are coated with a thin glaze (1 minute). Use a fresh plate and utensils for serving. Freeze/refrigerate leftovers. Cover leftovers to reheat and heat all the way through. 4 servings, about 2/3 cup each.

Pickled Eggs

Juice drained from canned beets, about 3/4 cup
3/4 cup vinegar
1/4 cup browned sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
12 whole cloves
6 hardcooked, peeled eggs

Bring beet juice, vinegar, brown sugar, salt and cloves to a boil in a saucepan. Cool. Shell hardcooked eggs. Pour beet juice over eggs and place in a quart jar. Weigh eggs down in the pickling mixture with a small, water-filled plastic food storage bag. Tie the top of the bag. Refrigerate eggs overnight. For best quality, use eggs within two days. If eggs are used in a buffet or picnic setting where they sit out over two hours, discard the leftovers.

Part Four in a series on Divorce

By Janet K. Lukens
Coast Consumer
Management Center

Your past credit history and your income are the two biggest factors that determine credit worthiness. Since your ability to borrow money is based on your credit worthiness, your credit history is another financial consideration when getting a divorce.

Joint credit accounts opened since June 1, 1977, are reported in the credit file of the wife and the credit file of the husband. For those joint accounts opened prior to June 1, 1977, the credit information may still be reported only in the husband's file.

To have credit information reported in both names, write to the creditor. Before doing this, however, decide whether or not the credit account was always paid on time. If the account was always paid on time, transfer the record. If it was overdue on several occasions in the last seven years, you will be transferring a poor credit history.

To find out what is in your credit file, contact your local credit bureau on purchasing a copy of the report. If you have been refused credit based on your credit bureau file, you can obtain a free review of your credit file if you request it within 30 days of the refusal.

If you receive the credit bureau report and it does not list joint accounts under your name, you can indicate on the consumer dispute form the account number and the names of the accounts.

If the credit bureau's investigation determines these are joint accounts, it also reports them in your name. Remember to do this only for good accounts—you don't want a bad credit history if you can avoid it.

After you are divorced, a creditor cannot close your account or change its terms unless you're unable or unwilling to pay. The creditor can, however, require you to submit a new credit application if the original credit account was based on your former spouse's income.

The best way to develop a credit rating is to develop a good employment record and have a checking and savings account. You may also open a small charge account with a local retail store, get a credit card with a low limit, or get a secured loan from a financial institution.

If you make the payments promptly and do not obligate yourself to more credit expenses than you can comfortably handle, you will develop your own good credit history.

Grandparents need milk, too*Everybody's Science

Vitamin D deficiency among the elderly, especially those who live in colder climates, may be an unrecognized epidemic.

It is definitely related, says one nutritionist, to the fact that about 200,000 Americans suffer from hip fractures each year, costing them $2 billion for medical treatment. Most of the sufferers are elderly.

"One reason for all this breakage is that older people are not getting enough vitamin D from their diets or from exposure to summer sunlight," says Michael F. Holick, of the Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging, at Tufts University. The center is funded by USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

"What's more," says Dr. Holick, "people begin losing bone mass in their thirties, leading to a weakened, spongelike bone structure in later years. The condition is called osteoporosis."

Although the process speeds up in women after menopause, says the nutritionist, "all people have it sooner or later. And when you have a vitamin D deficiency on top of osteoporosis, you can sharply increase the risk of breaking bones."

In a recent study of 142 patients with fractured hips at a Boston hospital, Holick and his associates found that up to 40 percent had little or none of the circulating form of vitamin D in their blood. Other studies in this country and in Great Britain reveal similar percentages.

More milk is an answer.

"The major cause of age-related vitamin D deficiency is a decrease in milk consumption," says Holick.

He points out that few foods contain vitamin D; the best food source is milk. It takes four 8-ounce glasses of milk a day, however, to provide the vitamin D we need.

"People who can't tolerate milk or who simply won't drink that much should take a vitamin D supplement or spend more time in the summer sun," according to Holick.

The right time for exposure can range from 5 or 10 minutes a day around midday for light-skinned people to considerably longer than that for people with darker skin.

Holick says there are sunny days in the winter, too, but points out that manufacture of the sunshine vitamin in the skin stops completely during the winter in latitudes as far north as Boston. One form of the vitamin, in fact, is actually broken down and made inactive by winter sunlight.
